Picture of Health

An eager and energetic group of men tackle a tough football season and make it to the playoffs.

At the beginning of the 1990 football season, skeptics claimed this would be a long, hard schedule to follow, but the Wolves paid no attention to criticism. A berth in the state community college playoffs showed everyone just what the Wolfpack could do.

Defensive End Chaucer Funchess of Magee, said, "We were very strong on defense. On offense, we had a lot of freshmen who started out slow, but they improved with each game they played."

Wide Receiver Roger Ogden of Natchez, said, "We definitely ended the season with a bang. The playoff loss to Itawamba was a big disappointment though. When you lose one that close you forget what a good season it's been, and you forget just how well you have played."

In five overtimes on Nov. 10, the Wolves lost a heart-stopper to the Itawamba Indians, and their chances of making it to the finals disappeared. It was the fifth time in six years that the team had made the playoffs, with the only state championship of those years coming in 1985.

"We should have played in the championship this year," Glen Thomas, a wingback from Meadville said.

"We always played good enough to win," he added.

Several of the team members played "good enough" to earn football scholarships to colleges across the United States as well as in Mississippi.

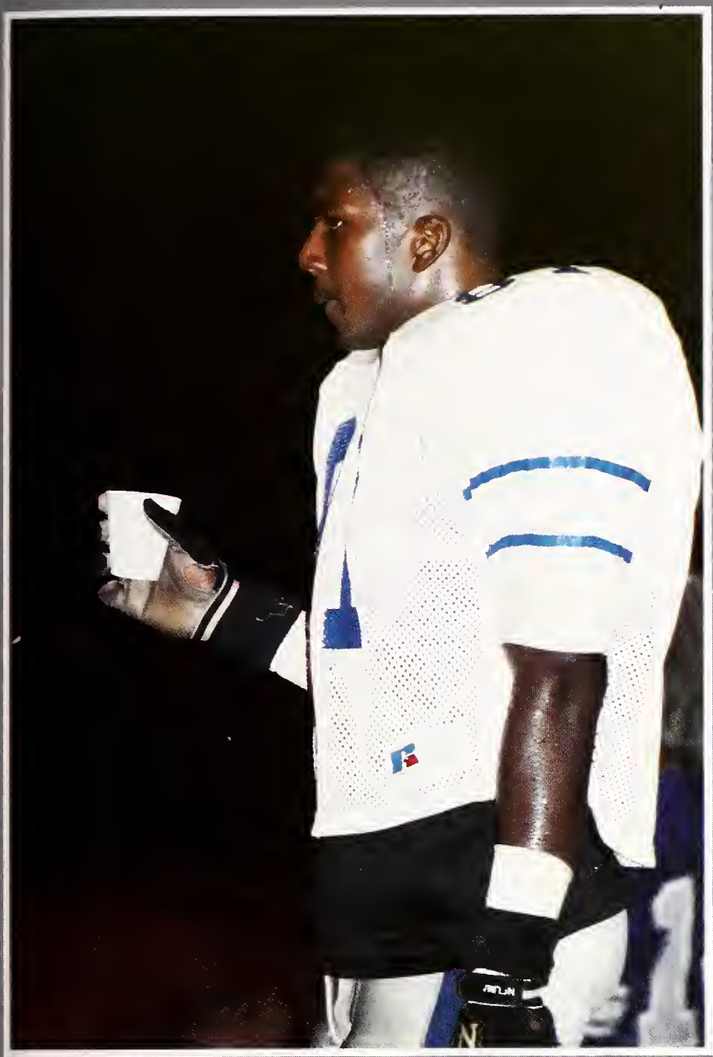
Funchess, the Wolfpack's most valuable player, signed with Oklahoma State University, while defensive back Steve Sessions of Natchez signed with the University of Tennessee. In state, players signed with Delta State, Mississippi Valley, and others.

Touchdown! The Wolves had no trouble crossing the goal line after the offense got its act together.

Throughout the season, coaches, spectators, and sports writers gave credit to the defense for Co-Lin's winning record. The credit was due to such outstanding players as linebacker Marty McWilliams of Magee, a leading tackler for the Wolves. Also shown is defensive back Reggie Scott of Natchez.

Offensive Line Coach Bob Ricketts watches what's happening on the field with his back-up crew — managers Eric Smith of Wesson and Johnny Young of Crystal Springs.

Wide Receiver Michael Cooper of Lake City, Fla., tries to get past the Southwest defense on homecoming day.



Co-Lin's Most Valuable Player, Chaucer Funchess, watches the Wolfpack from the sideline. The 6'2"/205 defensive end from Magee was also chosen team co-captain, and he received the leadership award.

Defensive Lineman Jim Hargrave of Natchez, left, and defensive back Steve Sessions, also of Natchez, check out the situation on the field while taking a rest. Sessions uses a towel to keep the hot sun off his face. Temperatures in Wesson reached the 90's even in mid October.

We've Got The Spirit - Linebacker Eric Jackson of Natchez breaks the run-through sign and leads the Wolfpack onto the field before their game against Southwest.

Step Into The Picture

Statistics from fall registration show that enrollment is "stable" with academic figures up approximately 24 students over 1989.

Enrollment at Copiah-Lincoln was termed "stable" by College Dean Dr. Howell Garner when heads were counted after fall registration.

Dr. Garner said, "This leveling-off of enrollment was expected by the administration because of the large increases we saw in 1988 and 1989."

For the fall semester, full-time academic day student statistics showed 833 enrolled, with 232 attending on a part-time basis. This total of 1,065 was up slightly over the 1989 figure of 1,041.

"The increase," according to Dr. Garner, "is due to a larger enrollment of part-time students."

In 1989, 192 attended part-time with 232 carrying less than a full load this school year. Full-time enrollment dropped from 849 to 833.

Vocational-technical statistics showed 438 full-time students, a decrease of 13 students from the 1989 total of 451.

However, full-time technical enrollment of 247 was up 8 students as compared to 239 this same time last year.

Vocational full-time student enrollment totaling 166 was down 20 from 1989 when 186 were enrolled.

An overall total of 1,503 was recorded by the college, a slight increase of 11 students over the 1989 figure of 1,492.

Dr. Garner also mentioned that there was not as much emphasis placed on recruiting prior to fall registration as there had been the year before.

"During the summer of 1989, members of the faculty staff and administration went out into the district and did a lot of recruiting as part of a special committee," he said.

"We set up meetings during the summer months at area high schools so that students could come and talk to us about Co-Lin," he added.

The college also set up recruiting stations at county courthouses and town businesses.

It was hard to tell, however, if this was the reason for last year's increase and for this year's stability.

Also, concerning enrollment trends, Co-Lin saw more non-traditional students enroll this fall.

More married students and single parents came back to school after having been out for several years.

Brad Ishee, left, Kevin Kimble, and Lance Case, all of Wesson, help students enroll during registration. The registration process has been simplified over the years to cut down on long lines.

Yearbook editors Lisa Arnold of Meadville, left, Melissa Geiger of Bassfield, and Beth Wallace of Bogue Chitto, take down information for annual photos. Yearbook photos are made during registration in order to include as many students as possible in the book.

Freshman Christie Brooks of Wesson asks Barbara Webb, registration traffic manager, where to go next. The "registration maze" can be confusing as well as frustrating.

Melissa Anglin of Brookhaven, left, discusses her class schedule with Michael Thompson of Summit. Time is spent waiting on computers to "spit out" schedules and fee printouts needed to complete the registration process.

Picture Perfect Day

Sunny skies, a warm temperature, a winning football team, and smiling faces make homecoming more than just another day.

Homecoming day was completed for coordinator Burlian Walker when he began to see the people arriving.

"I always worry about whether or not anybody is going to show up," Walker said.

And people definitely showed up. Hundreds of alumni returned from 15 different states and one came from as far away as England.

Walker said, "I think it's the largest crowd we've ever had, and everything went better than planned."

For Walker, the best part of homecoming was seeing people at the reunions and the game win.

"The luncheon was also a big success," he said.

Each year Walker and his staff in the Alumni Affairs Office begin work on homecoming months before the actual event.

Burlian Walker, front, executive director of the foundation and alumni affairs, checks over some last minute details with Trailblazer Tim Lott of New Hebron.

Members of the 1990 Homecoming Court are first row, Hoy, Pam Weatherly and Tabuna Wroten, both of Natchez; La-Tunia Chestang, New Hebron; Dawn Russell, Wesson; Laurice Pierce, Hazlehurst; Queen Chan Willis, Magee; India Hunter, Loyd Star; Deanna Smith, Wesson; Karla Adams, Brookhaven; April Wiley, Ferriday, La.; and Kristie Wilkinson, Meadville. Second row, Irby Campbell, Natchez; Jasin Wesberry, Woodville; James Young, Magee; Chris Newman, Hazlehurst; Trey Chapman, Crystal Springs; Greg Evans, Bogue Chitto; Michael Lee, D'Lo; Shane Tuttle, Natchez; Lane Smith, Wesson; Rob Tillman, Ferriday, La.; and Mark McGrew, Natchez.

The vocational-technical outstanding instructor of the year is Jack Amacker. Amacker is the Commercial Truck Driving Program Coordinator.

Katherine Huckaby was named the academic outstanding instructor of the year. Huckaby is chairman of the Health, Recreation, and P.E. Division.

Sophomore Maid Laurice Pierce of Hazlehurst walks onto the football field with Escort Trey Chapman of Crystal Springs.

This year's homecoming theme was "The Place To Be Challenged." Each year the Alumni Association chooses a different theme beginning with "The Place To Be."

Paint A Picture

Art students proclaim their talent is inherited and that their work only gets better with hours of practice.

Freshman Art Student Kay Calcote of Brookhaven, said, "If you don't follow it, you'll lose it."

What she was referring to is her ability to draw and paint flowers.

Art students at Co-Lin are quick to point out that drawing and painting aren't learned talents, but inherited or inborn gifts that can only be improved and brought out with practice.

And, even though these art students worked all year long to improve their basic skills in the same manner, they all have different ambitions for putting their knowledge to use.

Willie Harrell of Roxie said that he plans to pursue a career as an artist for a magazine and make a name for himself as an artist.

Sophomore art major Joanna Joyce of Brookhaven said, "I want to go to graphic design school and then open my own business."

Others, such as Jimmy Jackson of Brookhaven, want to continue to learn more and then teach art in the classroom.

For Calcote, however, art and painting are mainly hobbies.

"I want to help people see the beauty of flowers," she said.

> "I want to do something that I can enjoy as a career."
> Joanna Joyce
> Art Major

When asked why they decided to take art classes or to major in art, the general consensus was that it is something that can be enjoyed.

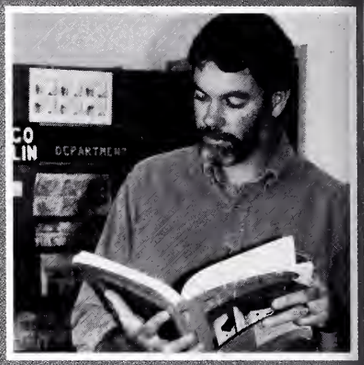
Joyce said, "I enjoy it, and I want to do something that I can enjoy as a career."

Having a good imagination also plays a key role in becoming successful in the art world.

Many of the students use photographs and models to paint or draw from, but they all agreed that imagination plays a major part in making each artist's work unique.

Tom Ross, art instructor, said, "This is the most talented, diverse group of students I have ever had."

Ross added that Co-Lin gives its students the opportunity to develop their skills and helps them work toward a career.



> "This is the most talented, diverse group of students I have ever had."
> Tom Ross
> Art Instructor

Art major Willie Harrell of Roxie adds his creative touch to an old pickup truck being painted by the art department.

Sophomore Connie Johnson of Brookhaven sands down a part of the truck she is going to paint. Each student was given a section of the vehicle to paint with his/her own design.

Jimmy Jackson touches up the eagle face which he painted on the hood of the art department's pickup truck which was covered with original designs by college art students.

Pep rallies are held each fall to show the football team that the student body is behind them and that everyone hopes the Wolfpack has a perfect season.

Cheerleaders may say that the hardest part of their job was preparing for football games. However, they readily admitted that pep rallies took a lot of hard work also.

"Most of the preparation is PRACTICE," said freshman cheerleader Deanna Smith of Wesson.

She said, "It's worth the effort though because the football team seems to appreciate what we do."

"We try really hard to let the team know we're behind them, and we try to get the students excited about the game too," she said.

The college usually holds five pep rallies a year, one for each home game. However, this wasn't the case in 1990, with only three being held. "We decided to have less of them so maybe there would be more participation," Smith said.

She added, "I have found that college pep rallies are a lot different from high school ones. The students just don't participate as much in college."

Pep rallies not only involved the work of the cheerleaders, but also that of the band, Colettes, and the Wolf mascot.

Head Football Coach Randall Bradberry gives a "pep talk" to the football team at the first pep rally of the year.

The band is always prepared to excite the pep rally crowds with an upbeat tune. Band members work hard to make sure everyone has a good time.

Colettes Dawn Davis of Natchez, left, Laurice Pierce and Dona Viramontez, both of Hazlehurst perform a dance routine.

Football team members Steve Sessions of Natchez, left, Reggie Scott of Natchez, Amie Green of Magee, and Lawrence Green and Roger Ogden, both of Natchez, listen to what Coach Bradberry has to tell them at the pep rally.

The Colettes try to keep their lines straight. They practice every day to perfect their dances.

Chad Savage of Mendenhall, left, Deanna Smith of Wesson, Amy Hart of Brookhaven, and Head Cheerleader Dawn Russell of Wesson, know that the better the cheer looks, the better the students like it. They spend endless hours getting it just right.

The student body shows their support. Attending the first pep rally were Michelle Bland of Hazlehurst, Jennifer Cook of Wesson, Regina Miller of Hazlehurst, Kim Ahrend of Brookhaven, and Matt McGhee of Metairie, La.

Moving Pictures

A talented group of musicians formed one of the most entertaining and eye-catching band shows ever for marching season.

Opening the fall halftime show with some old Chicago tunes, the 1990 "Blue Wave" band marched 99 members onto the field for the first game against East Central.

Band Director Stanley Steward said, "I was very pleased with this year's group - they were very cooperative and learned extremely fast."

Color Guard member Rebecca Papizan of Crystal Springs, said, "We worked real well together."

Working well together was the reason for the outstanding show the band performed throughout football season.

Jeanie Carol Brown, a color guard member from Wesson, said, "I think we were very talented."

"I was pleased with this year's group."

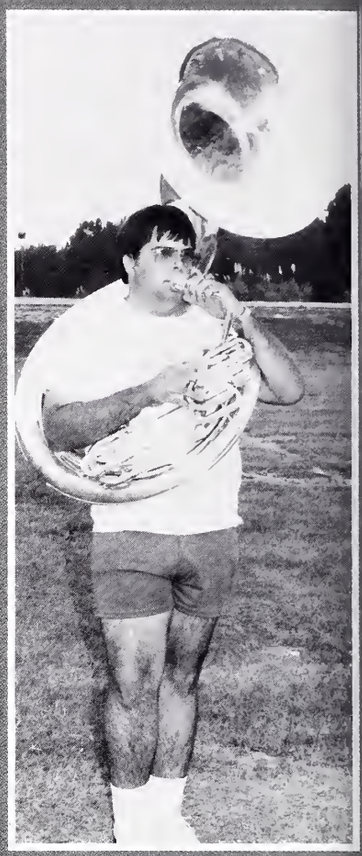
Performing a drum and bugle corp format, the band worked through the hot temperatures of August perfecting the show.

Colette April Smith of Wesson, said, "The hardest part was practice and learning the show."

Saxophonist Angie Colenburg added, "It was just too hot out there."

Besides the sounds of Chicago, the band also performed "School's Out for Summer," an Alice Cooper tune, and "Sloop John B," by the Beach Boys, plus several other selections.



Tuba player Dean Runyan of Wesson blows a few notes during a hot afternoon practice. The band practiced long hours during the month of August.

Dressed For Homecoming - The blue, gray, and white band uniforms showed up nicely during the presentation of the homecoming court.

The saxophones lead the way into the stadium. Section members are, from bottom, Angela Co-enburg, Natchez; Nicole Walters, Brookhaven; Belinda Brown, Lorman; Ken Yarborough, Jayess; and Tony Windham, Sanatorium.

A Family Picture

Dr. Thames says the members of his family provide support for one another through hard times as well as easy times.

Even though the word "family" doesn't seem to have as much meaning in 1990 as it did several years ago, Dr. Billy Thames said the word actually has more meaning for his family today.

Dr. Thames, president of the college, said, "The word 'family' means more to us because the children are now adults, and they have a say in the decisions that are made."

"The family is growing together. Everyone is a lot busier than before, and we all depend on each other for direction and guidance," he said.

Dr. Thames defined the word "family" as a close-knit group of people that love and support one another.

While members of the Thames family are always there for one another, each member is also busy working on personal accomplishments and goals.

The oldest daughter, Rachel, became Mrs. Larry Peeples on Dec. 29 in an evening ceremony at Wesson Baptist Church.

She also completed the coursework for her doctorate in December at Florida State University. She holds a master's degree from Mississippi College and a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Rachel, now 27, taught in Clinton before going to Florida State.

The middle daughter, Rebecca, has a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi, and she is in her second year of law school at the University of Mississippi.

Dr. Thames said that as the 23-year-old middle child, Rebecca, "keeps the family straight."

William, the 21-year-old son, is an engineering major at Mississippi State University, and he enjoys hunting and fishing.

All three graduated from Wesson Attendance Center and Co-Lin.

Dr. Thames' wife, Anne, currently teaches fifth grade at Mullins Elementary School in Brookhaven. Dr. Thames celebrated 23 years as president of the college on Jan. 20.

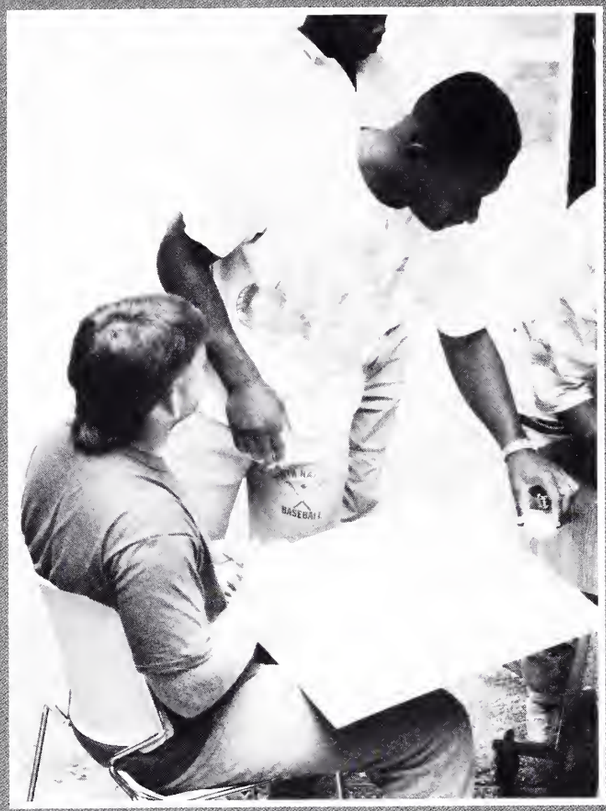
Dr. Thames checks over the newspaper with his 21-year-old son William and 23-year-old daughter Rebecca.

Dr. Thames shows Rachel, his oldest daughter, that there's no money left to spend on the wedding. Rachel became Mrs. Larry Peeples on Dec. 29.

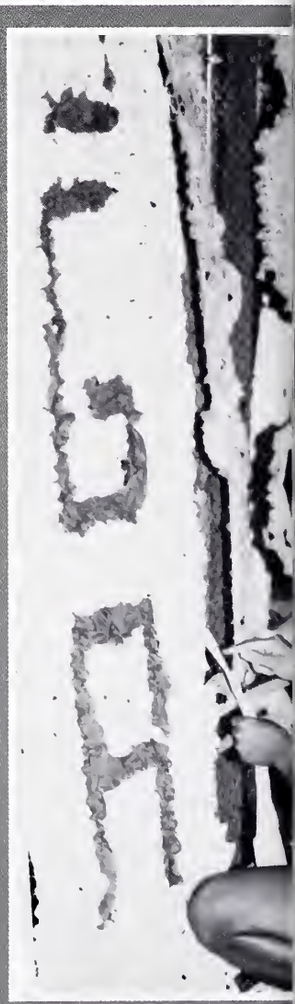
Dr. and Mrs. Thames have been married for 30 years. Twenty-three of those years have been spent at Co-Lin.

Every day life at Co-Lin includes catching a bite to eat in the cafeteria, and no group likes to eat more than the football team. Those with big appetites are, from left, Cedric Minor, Aundra Easterling, Tony Smith, Ronald White, Clarence Williams, Chris Funches, Kevin Jackson, and Calvin McKnight.

Freshman Jeff Johnson of Natchez, standing, picks up a voting ballot to mark an "X" for his favorite homecoming queen candidate as Student Government Association Treasurer Amie Green of Magee checks his name off the list. Other elections held throughout the year included those for Mr. and Miss Co-Lin, class favorites, and freshman and sophomore class officers.



Last year's homecoming queen Terri Dunaway of Brookhaven scans the crowd at the football game against Southwest. She waits to crown the 1990 queen Chan Willis of Magee.



Being the Wolf mascot is a fact of student life for freshman Lance Case of Wesson. He adds sunglasses to his outfit to complete the "cool" Co-Lin look.

The Big Picture

College was more than day after day of biology, speech, English, algebra, and Western Civilization during the year. There were more important things to take care of - well, almost more important things. Football games, food, friends, and foosball were high on the list of priorities, along with those study hours. And students didn't waste anytime checking their priorities off their lists of things to do.

Freshman Deanna Smith of Wesson models a fall dress during a fashion show held by the Copiah-Lincoln Education Association. Several students participated in the show which was attended by most faculty and staff members.

SGA members Chan Willis of Magee, left, and April Smith of Wesson, work on the organization's homecoming display. Many nights were spent stuffing crepe paper, and members were disappointed when their display didn't place in the annual competition.

My Life's A "Rec"

Co-eds spend time in the Rec Hall shooting pool, playing a quick game of Spades, and visiting with friends.

"I go to the Rec when I've got time on my hands," said Timmy Tindle of Meadville.

"I like to go and shoot a few games of pool," he added.

Callendar Hall or the Rec, as most people refer to it, was a point of interest for students this year. It was especially convenient for dormitory students who would find themselves with nothing to do after dark.

Freshman Lance Falvey of Enterprise, said, "There's no where else to go."

"I usually go in there and spend all my money, and complain that the pool tables need to be fixed," he said.

The Rec was not just used for a pool hall throughout the year. Intramural sports such as basketball and volleyball were played on the second floor where the old gymnasium is located.

Also, students swarmed in and out during the day to check their mail boxes for letters from home.

Other games beside pool were also popular. The video games that run the length of the building were surrounded by students trying to beat the best score. And ping pong balls bounced on and off the wooden tables from opening to closing time.

Several student workers were in charge of keeping the Rec in operation, and there was hardly ever any trouble in the facility with the Security Office located on the front of the building.

Located in the "Circle," the Rec was a gathering place for students between classes and a cruising spot for vehicles making their daily rounds.

In the early years of the college, the bottom floor of the Rec was the main cafeteria for the institution. The addition of the Henley Building moved the eating facilities to a more modern area.

The Rec, however, has never seen more students use the facility than they do today. It has become a natural break in the everyday routine of attending classes.

Card games are going on all the time in the Rec. Trevor Ringo of Harriston, left, plays a few hands with Tangela Jones of Natchez, Hattie Covington of Roxie, and James Young of Magee.

The bench in front of the Rec is a favorite visiting spot. Sophomore Chaucer Funchess of Magee, far right, shakes hands with Kevin Waller of Bude, as Eartis Bridges of Monticello, and Cassandra Glass of Fayette, enjoy the scenery.

Freshman Bobby White of McCall Creek concentrates on putting the ball in the corner pocket. White and several of his friends are regulars at the pool tables in the Rec.

Sophomore Amie Green of Magee makes a loop through the Circle. Many cars and trucks stop in the Circle in front of the Rec to speak to friends and classmates.

The girls can play pool too! Racking up for another game are, from left, Michelle Thomas of Wesson, Sandra Johnson of Hazlehurst, Cheryl McInnis of Wesson, and Linda Magee of Prentiss.

Sophomore Paul Hayles of Natchez contemplates his next pool shot. Can he play pool as well as he plays football?

They've Got The Look

The Sexy Legs Contest, sponsored by the college radio station WCLL-FM, attracted a variety of participants from football players to engineering majors.

Freshmen Paula Bryant of New Hebron and Greg Scoggins of Dothan, Ala., walked away with top honors during the first annual Sexy Legs Contest held in the fall.

When asked what he thought about winning the competition, Scoggins said, "I was very embarrassed."

"I knew that I would get picked on after it was all over, and I did," he said.

Scoggins modestly added that he didn't think his legs looked that good.

"I didn't think they looked good enough to win," he said.

Football probably was a factor in the win because the players are required to lift weights on a regular basis.

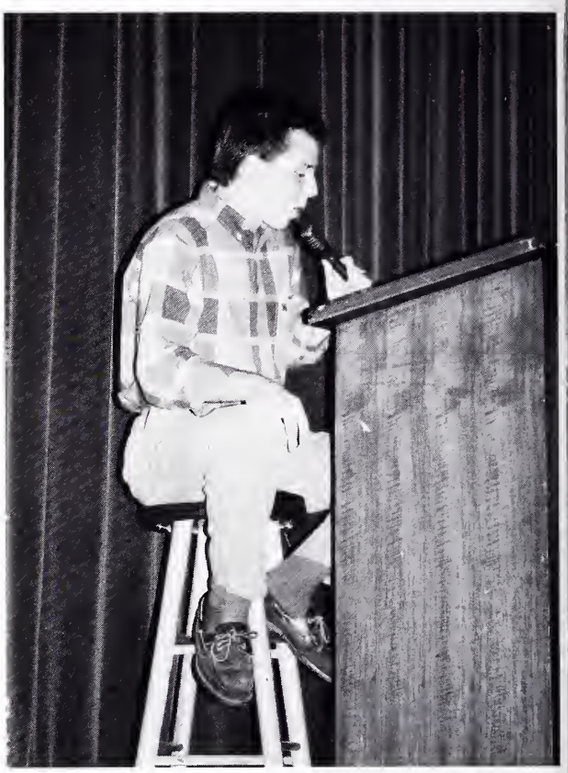
"I guess that had something to do with it," Scoggins admitted.

He entered the contest as a joke along with several other members of the football team. He said they all talked him into entering.

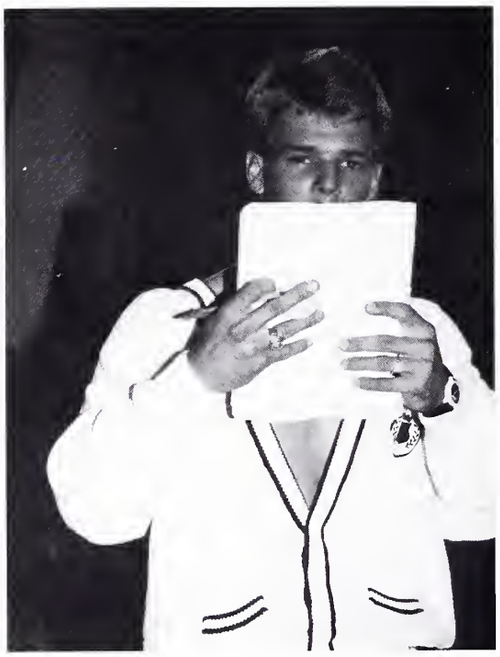
Scoggins said he plans to continue lifting weights to keep in shape. When asked if he would defend his title in next year's contest, Scoggins said, "I don't know about that."

However, he will definitely be back in the fall of 1991, returning as the kicker for the Wolves football team.

WCLL-FM staff members commented that even though Scoggins may not defend his legs title next year, they are still planning to hold the contest for others that "have the look."



Master of Ceremonies Chris Smith of Jayess announces the contestants. Smith is a member of the WCLL-FM staff.



Timmy Tindle, contest coordinator, makes sure everything is running smoothly behind the curtain. Tindle is program director for WCLL.

Sexy Legs Contest winners include, from left, Paula Bryant, first place women's division; Harriet Vickers, second place women's division; Greg Scoggins, first place men's division; and Kip Rollins, second place men's division.

Men's Division winner Greg Scoggins of Dothan, Ala., shows off his legs to the judges. Scoggins beat 16 other contestants to capture the "Sexy Legs" title.

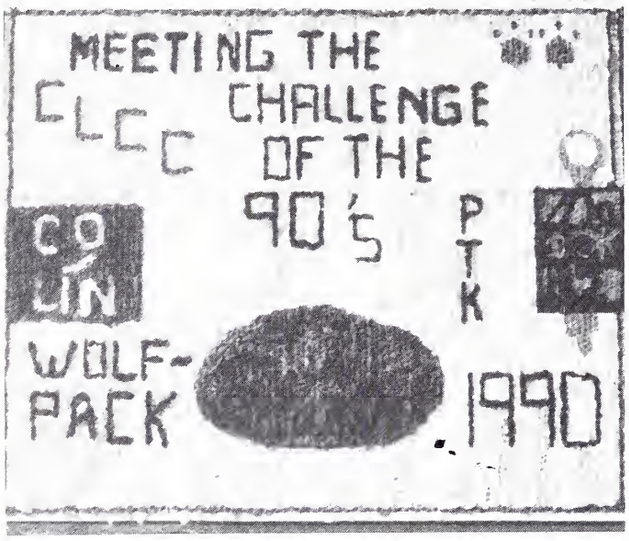
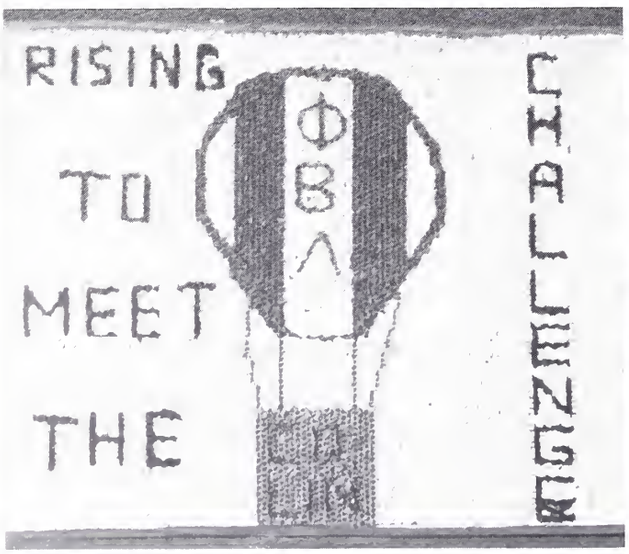
Contestant Jammie Keating of Natchez put on a good show for the audience. However, the judges didn't think he had the right stuff to win.

The college's radio station, WCLL-FM, won the homecoming display competition with their design "1970-1990, 20 Years of Challenge." Station disc jockeys did the work with the help of advisor Burlian Walker.



Second place display honors went to Phi Theta Kappa honorary society. Their theme was "Meeting the Challenges of the '90s," and the display featured the PTK emblem and the Co-Lin logo.



Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity captured third place with their design which featured a hot air balloon. Their message was "Rising to Meet the Challenge."

Sophomore Wade Brown of Meadville did most of the work on this display by himself. He is a member of the Vocational-Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) organization.

Freshman Jenny Ware of Magee, a member of the Student Government Association, concentrates on finishing her section. The SGA's design featured the "dude" of the '90s, Bart Simpson.

The Late Shift

Organization members work long, late hours to complete their homecoming displays in hopes of winning the cash.

Pulling an all-nighter wasn't what the WCLL-FM radio staff had in mind when deciding to enter the annual homecoming display contest.

Radio station disc jockey Dana Reed of Brookhaven, said, "I think it actually took about 3 days and one all-nighter."

"The group put hours of hard work into it, and they deserved to win first place," she said.

Promotions Director Christie Fortenberry of Mendenhall, said, "We weren't even going to enter, and then Vicki Ward came up with a good idea so we decided to stay with it."

She added, "The design was not too simple or too complicated. It was just enough to catch the judges' eye."

WCLL's display featured a radio tower on a globe of the earth. The station also incorporated its 20-year anniversary into the entire homecoming theme. The words read, "WWCL and WCLL - 20 years of Meeting the Challenge."

The call letters WWCL were used by the station before it decided to change them to WCLL.

Fortenberry said, "I think we expected to win or at least place in the competition."

Ward added, "We gave it a good fight and came out on top."

WCLL won the top cash prize of $100, and Phi Theta Kappa came in second winning $75, with Phi Beta Lambda grabbing the $50 third place prize.

Trillium staff member Shannon King of Monticello gets a crepe paper mummy wrap from PTK officer Donnie White of Wesson. Roll after roll of crepe paper was used to stuff the displays.

Melissa Geiger of Bassfield, stuffs the Trillium and Wolf Tales display. The two groups combined efforts.

School Scholars

The Scholar's Bowl Team prepares for Ole Miss's academic competition.

On Feb. 15 and 16, four college students and their sponsor traveled to the University of Mississippi to compete for thousands of dollars in scholarship prizes.

Known as the Scholar's Bowl Team, this group spent hour upon hour preparing for the Ole Miss competition. Humanities Division Chairman Durr Walker quizzed team members in the areas of mathematics, science, social science, and humanities.

This year's select group consisted of Brian Fauver of Brookhaven, Tim Lott of New Hebron, and Ivan Burghard and Scott Marler, both of Crystal Springs.

"Coach" Walker described the competition this way, "This statewide contest, now in its fifth year, is a recognition of scholastic ability for some of the top junior and community college students in the state."

He continued, "The Scholar's Bowl is similar to the television game 'Jeopardy'. Each round is given a time limit within which a certain number of questions are asked."

Team members are selected in December and that's when practice also begins. Team members said that one problem with practicing is finding a time when they can all meet together.

Burghard said, "I'm taking 20 hours and the other guys are taking full loads also, so we're having to hit it hard - but we can do it."

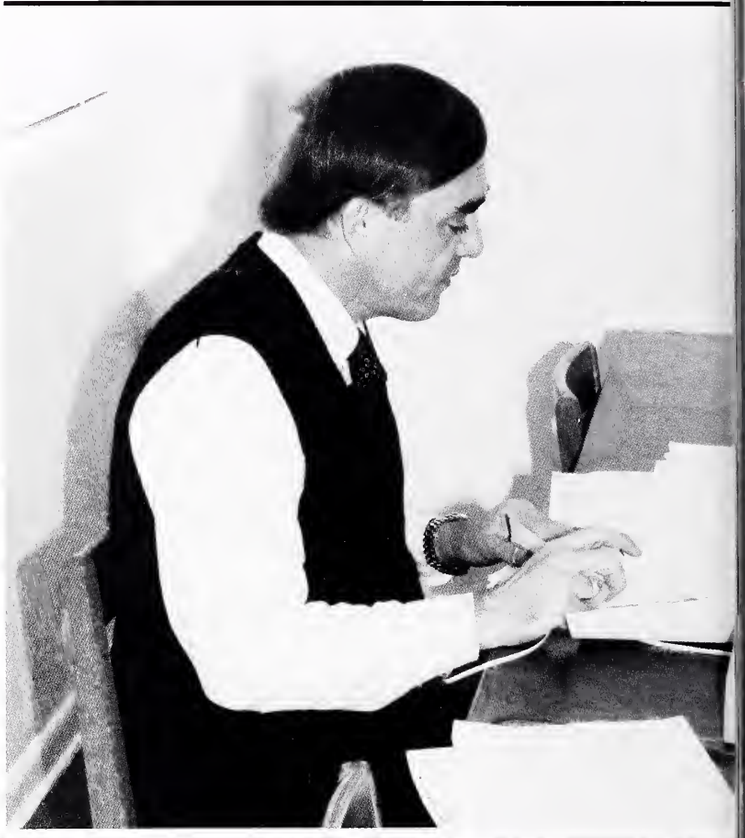
Each team member is the "authority" on one of the subject areas that questions are asked from. However, according to Walker, each one has some knowledge of all the subjects.

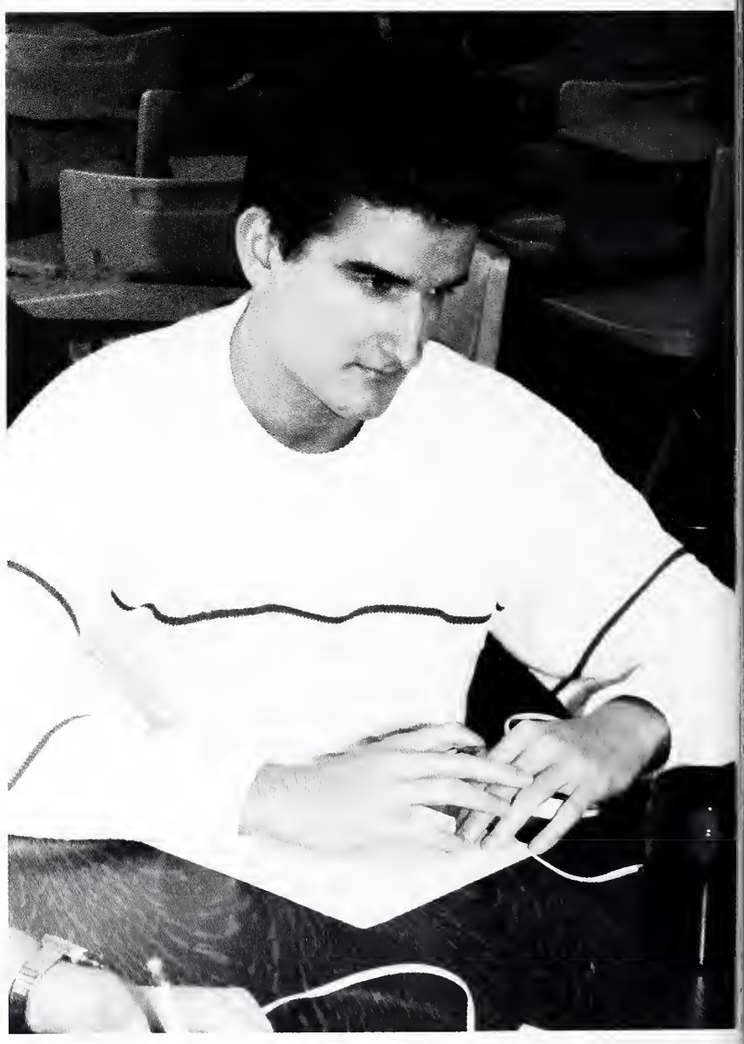
> "It's similar to the game show 'Jeopardy'."
> Durr Walker

Walker said there are no rivalries between the teams because winning doesn't necessarily mean one team is smarter than the other.

He said, "Not only do the team members have to think of the answer, but they have to be the first one to push the button. It's not always who knows the answer first, but who pushes the button first."

Coach Walker reads a sample question to team members.





Scholar's Bowl team member Ivan Burghard of Crystal Springs concentrates on the question that Coach Durr Walker is asking. Burghard knows that being fast at the buzzer means scholarship funds for him and other team members.

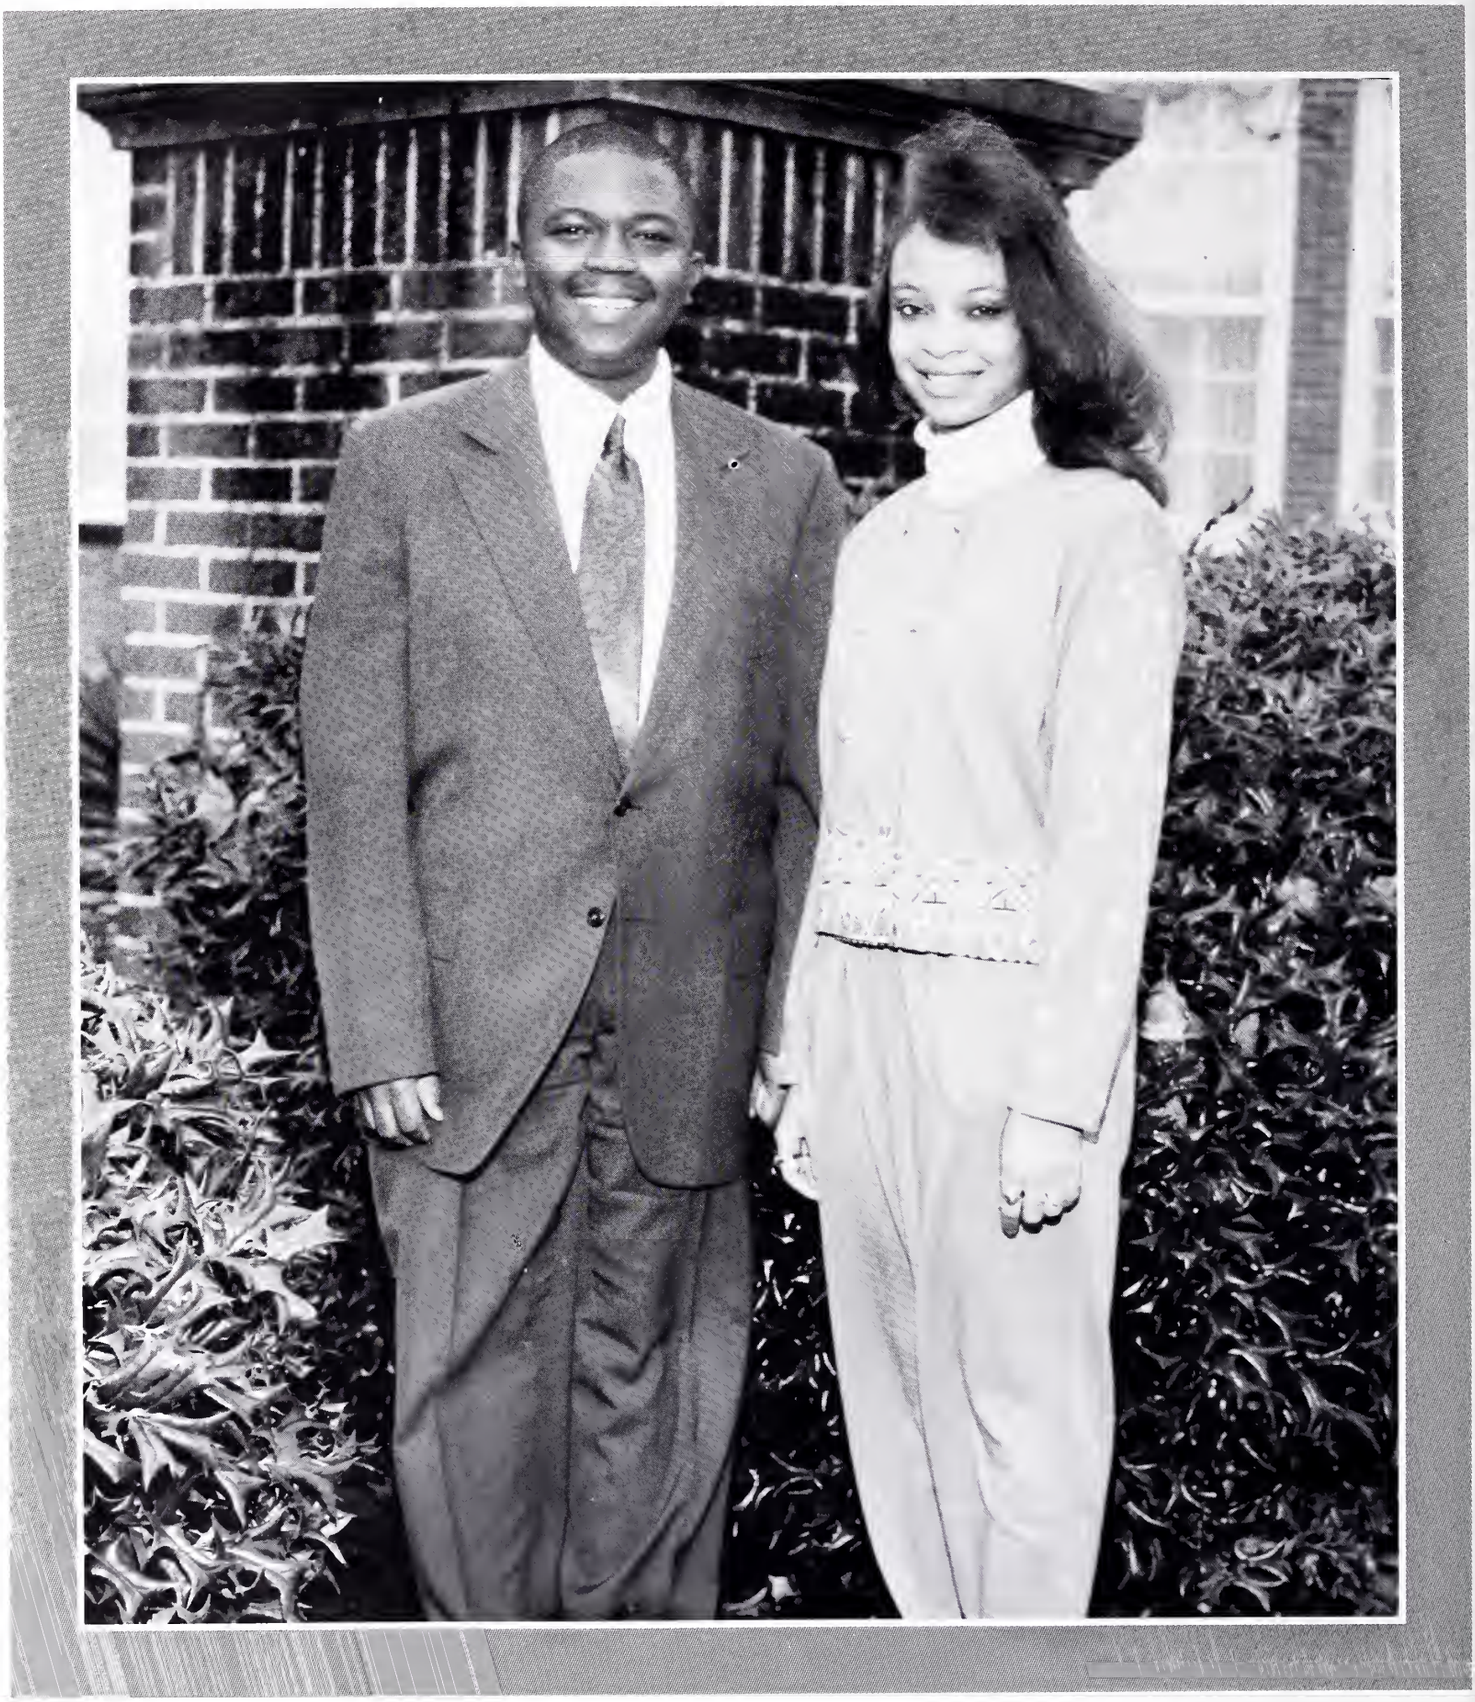
Mr. and Miss Co-Lin
Charles Jackson and Chan Willis



Mr. and Miss Co-Lin, Charles Jackson of Roxie and Chan Willis of Magee, look through a book in the college library.

Friendly And Popular

This year's Mr. and Miss Co-Lin are the nicest and most involved people on campus.

A smile is the first thing people notice about Mr. Co-Lin Charles Jackson of Roxie. He greets everyone with a grin even when there's really nothing to grin about.

A "people" oriented person, Jackson shows his concern for others by helping them out in any possible way.

He said, "I like to do whatever possible for anyone I can help."

And, helping out is exactly what he did during the summer as a missionary in Harlem, New York. He worked from June 3 to Aug. 10 at the Harlem Baptist Ministry Center where he did "what he could" for homeless children, senior citizens, AIDS patients and others.

The idea of becoming a summer missionary first appealed to Jackson when other missionaries came to Co-Lin's Baptist Student Union meetings and showed slides that focused on the need for help.

Jackson became involved in the BSU program during his first semester at Co-Lin, and he serves as devotional chairman.

He also gives his time on campus as Student Government Association president, Phi Theta Kappa president, Phi Beta Lambda vice president, and as a choir and band member.

The business law/political science major said he may go into the ministry fulltime.

Miss Co-Lin Chan Willis of Magee is a favorite among the student body. They elected her this year's homecoming queen, a position she said she "felt honored" to hold.

Like Jackson, Willis is an active and involved Co-Lin co-ed. She serves as Student Government Association secretary, as rifle captain of the band's color guard, and as a member of the Trailblazers recruiting group, the Afro-American Plus Club, the choir, and the yearbook staff. Her freshman year, she was chosen a top ten beauty in the Trillium Beauty Pageant.

Willis plans to pursue a nursing degree at the University of Southern Mississippi, specializing in pediatrics.

Both Jackson and Willis are among the select few chosen to the college's Hall of Fame each year. The honor is bestowed upon those who show academic scholarship, campus leadership, and involvement.

Charles scans the library's card catalog for information for a paper he has to write. He is a "regular" in the library as well as in the Learning Center.

Chan takes care of some business with Data Processing Assistant Zandra Ray in the college's business office.

Follow The Leader

Members of Who's Who are individuals on campus that others turn to for answers, for direction.

Being named to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges is quite an honor according to sophomore Donnie White of Wesson.

He said, "It's nice to be recognized for my work."

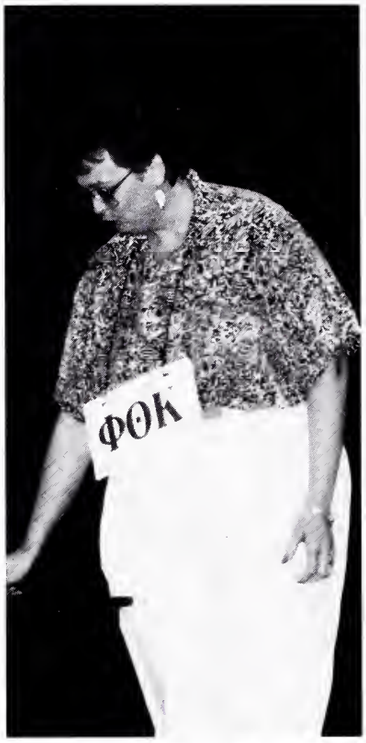
Who's Who students are academic leaders as well as leaders in extracurricular activities. Co-Lin has 41 listed as members this year, and they join students from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in the United States and several foreign countries.

When asked why he thought he was chosen, sophomore Ivan Burghard of Crystal Springs, said, "I guess I was included because of my involvement on campus and because of my grades."

Who's Who member Karen Hammond of Loyd Star said that she feels it is the good, all-around students with dedication and commitment that are selected.

"It takes hard work and the use of personal time as study time to be a good student," she said.

These campus leaders also have big plans for the future. White is planning a career in accounting, while Burghard has chosen political science and pre-law. Hammond is pursuing a degree in dietetics.



Phi Theta Kappa member Jackie Ferguson of Brookhaven gives directions during practice for initiation. Ferguson is also a Phi Beta Lambda officer.

Student Government Association Vice President Stuart Rich of Brookhaven mans the election polls. Rich is also a member of Phi Theta Kappa and the Trailblazers recruiting organization.

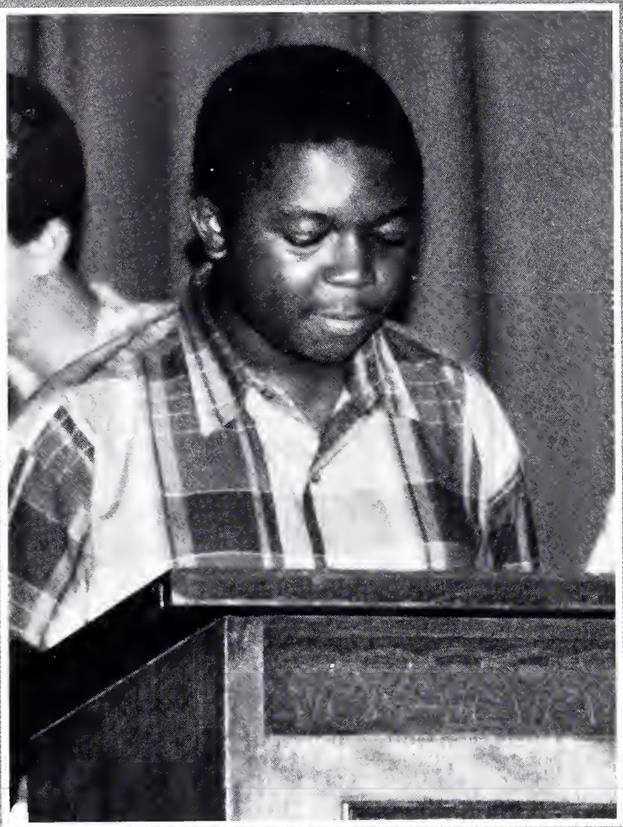
Lane Smith of Wesson knows Who's Who on campus. His involvement as a cheerleader and as a member of the Trailblazers allows him to meet many different people.

Her middle name is "involved." Kathy Odom of Jayess is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, the Hall of Fame, choir, and the Microcosm staff.

Who's Who student Dixi Williams of Natchez sings with the Christian rock group "High Calling." Williams is also head Colette and a Baptist Student Union officer.

Guitar Player Shannon Canoy of Mendenhall performs as part of the Christian rock group "High Calling." The band, which was formed during the fall semester, was the opening act for the "Lively Stones" Christian concert.

Phi Theta Kappa President Charles Jackson of Roxie works on his speech to first semester initiates. Eta Omega Chapter had 21 students join in the fall.



Jimmy Anderson of Wesson, photographer for the Trillium and "Wolf Tales" staffs, focuses in on members of the homecoming court. Anderson has spent two years capturing campus events on film.

Chemistry student Linda Walker of Magee watches her experiment to make sure it doesn't boil over. Walker is a pre-pharmacy major.

Pictures of Success

Academics, vo-tech, and organizations - great grades, job training, and student involvement - it all leads to success

Following an "open door" policy, Co-Lin allows students from all walks of life to pursue an education. From developmental programs in English, reading and mathematics, to course work in pre-medicine, engineering, and literature, students have the opportunities to realize their goals. Vocational-technical programs also provide job training and employment skills needed to start a successful career.

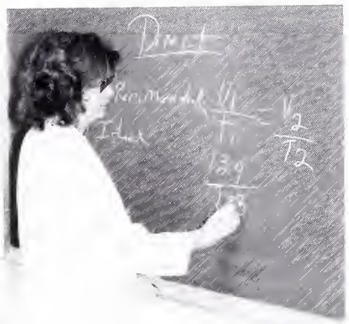
Scientific Evidence

There is visible proof that science students are receiving the best education possible - just ask them.



"Our students are prepared to compete at any and all levels of advanced study."

Dr. Phyllis Lanier

Chemistry major Tim Lott of New Hebron finished courses this year in the science department that he can transfer to the university of his choice.

"This department has a great transfer reputation," Lott said.

He added, "The curriculum here prepares students for challenges to be faced at the university setting."

Pre-nursing major Mark Cook of Magee backed up Lott's comments.

He said, "The amount of knowledge I have gained amazes me since I began with no chemistry background."

Sheila Cornelius, a medical technology major agreed by saying, "The teachers care. They want you to be able to survive, if not excel, in your future education."

Instructors in the science division include Ron Williamson, Riddell Leggett, Donald Lawson, Dr. Doug Schexnayder, Phil Broome, and Department Chairman Dr. Phyllis Lanier.

Pre-dental major Pam King of Brookhaven said that what she will remember most about her experiences in the department is Dr. Lanier's drive and determination to see that her students do the best.

King said, "She wants you to be your best."

Dr. Lanier replied, "We, as science instructors, insist that good teaching is the hallmark of the community college movement, with students encouraged to be active and cooperative learners."

Instructors share 105 years of teaching experience in the fields of chemistry, biology, zoology, physical science, botany, dendrology, anatomy and physiology, and microbiology.

Offering 24 different majors to its students, the division's strong points seem to be the outstanding and up-to-date transfer program, qualified instructors, acceptance of graduates in all science-health areas.

"We are a successful, innovative, and dedicated science division," Dr. Lanier said.

Computer Operated

Study in the college's Learning Center is technically up-to-date and easy with the aid of computers and audio/visual equipment.

"Last year, 28,000 students used the Learning Center, and numbers are up this year."

Linda Payn
Learning Center Director

What started out as a learning laboratory for students in developmental programs, has become a center of study for most academic students on campus.

The Learning Center, according to director Linda Payn, is a study lab that is equipped with computers and audio/visual equipment. It is also an extension of Library Services.

Payn said, "The Center offers study material on 52 different subjects."

Students use computer discs prepared by college instructors which help them learn such things as biology terms and possible questions asked on tests.

Learning Center Student Assistant Brian Butler of Wesson, said, "It teaches students how to study better and prepares them for senior college work."

Payn said the strongest point of the Center is the method of study.

"Students are studying actively, not passively," she said.

The weakest point, she said, is the lack of staff.

"Last year we had 28,000 students to sign in here and the figures are up this year," she said. "On some days, there just aren't enough staff members to provide students with adequate help."

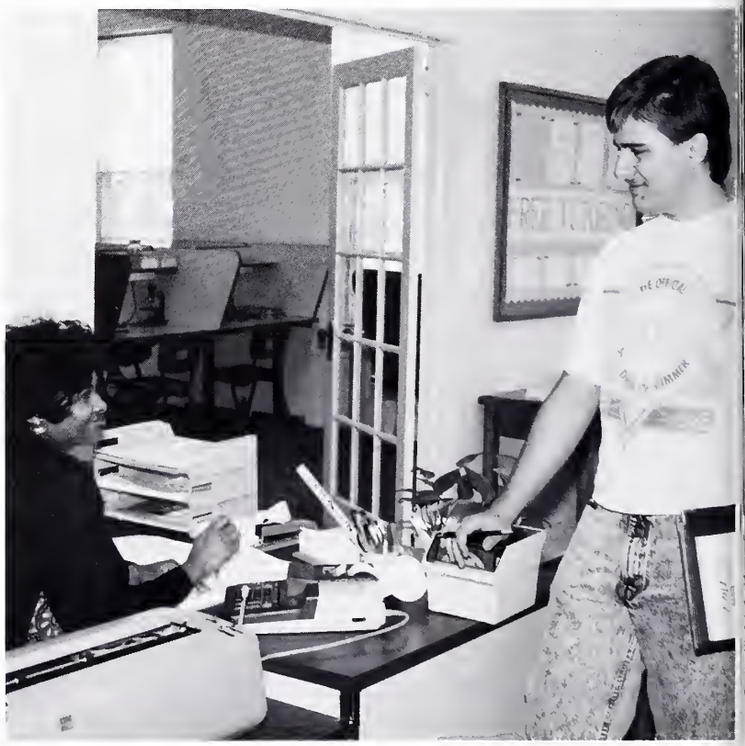
Services of the Center have increased over the past few years and the number of students using the materials have more than doubled since 1988.

The college's Learning Center is unique among other centers like it in the state's community college system. Others are basically extensions of developmental programs.

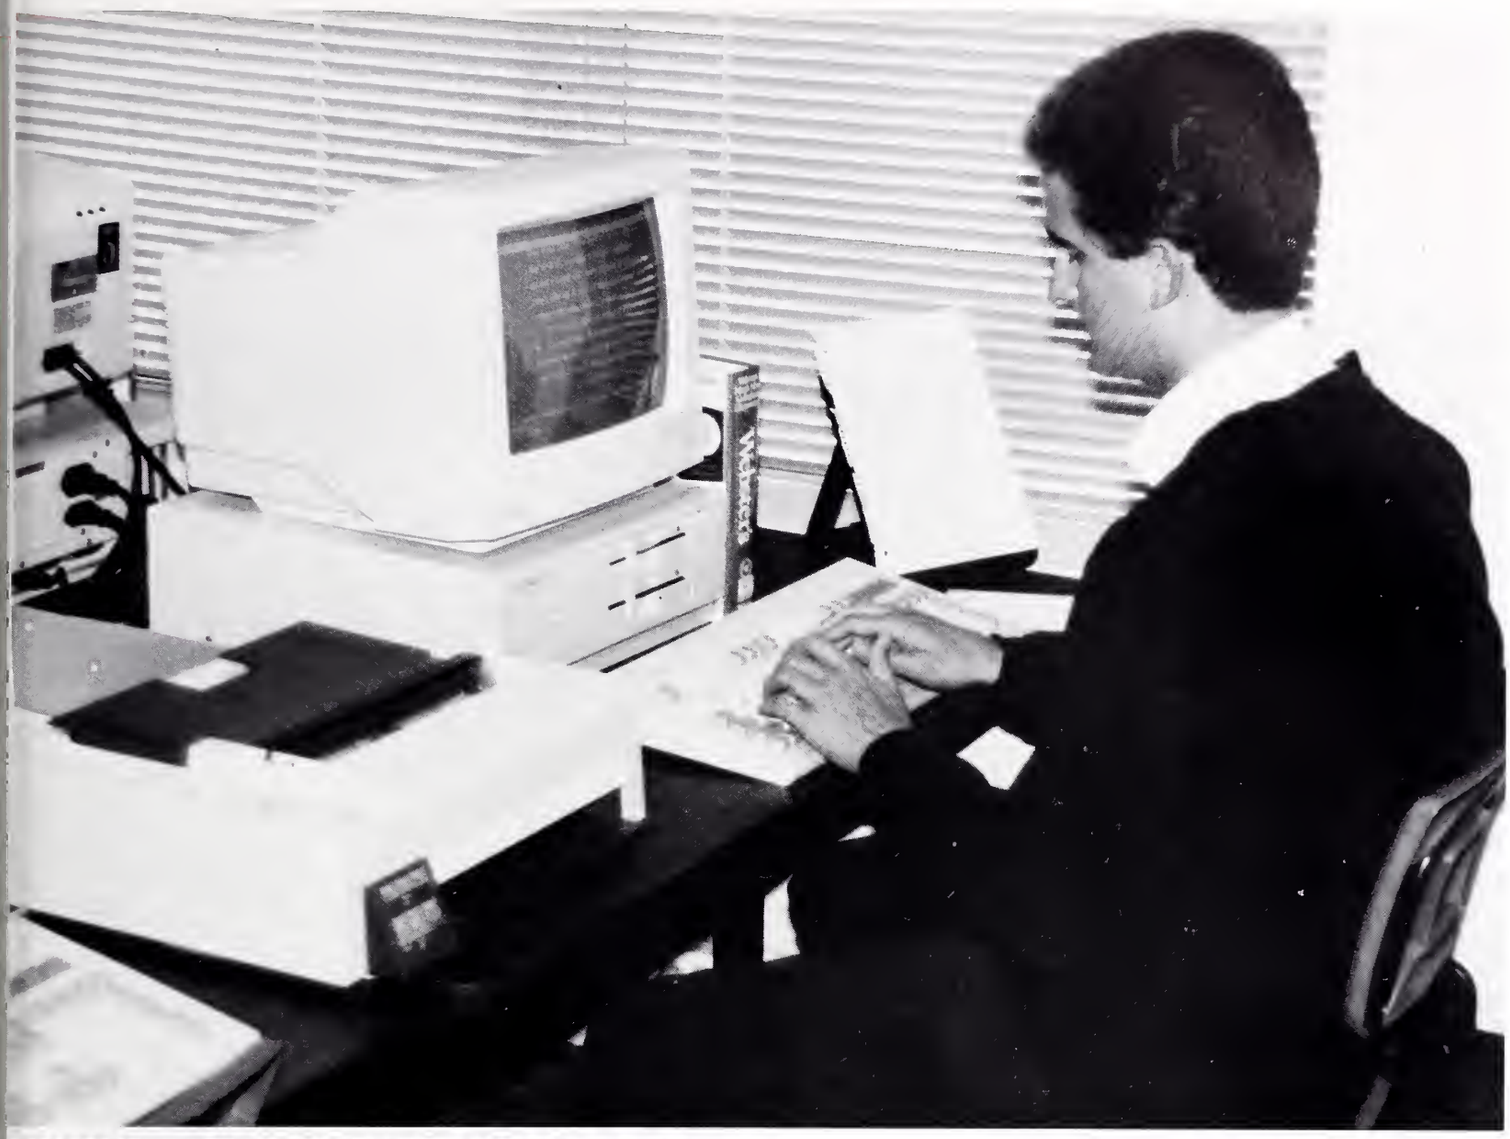
The concept of Co-Lin's Learning Center has been presented at several different conferences in the state and at two national conventions.

The Learning Center has 35 computers for student use. Here, Ivan Burghard of Crystal Springs, types a report for Phi Beta Lambda.

Student Michelle Benson of Crystal Springs does some typing on one of the Apple computers.



Learning Center Secretary Audrey Clay gives directions to Jeff Watts of Brookhaven.



Instructional Assistant Pat Walker, left, and Student Assistant Brian Butler of Wesson watch over those working in the Learning Center. They are there to answer questions and to show students how to operate the equipment.

Trick Or Treat

Each year little ones in the Child Care Center make their way around campus in search of Halloween candy.

On Oct. 31, when all of the witches, ghosts, and goblins are out and about, so are the children from the college's Child Care Center.

Child Caregiver Gail Catchings said the children look at this as a time to receive special treats.

"They love seeing the different faces of people on the campus and enjoy visiting the offices," she said.

She added that they get very excited about trick or treating and that it is hard for aides and student workers to keep them settled down.

"I think the teachers enjoy this as much or maybe more than the kids. We only wish we had as much energy as they do," Catchings said.

The children also get involved in other activities throughout the year. Catchings labeled the fall semester "Trike-A-Thon" as a "smashing success."

She said, "The kids learn the importance of helping others through these projects."

The Center also holds a Thanksgiving Dinner for the parents and enters a float in the Wesson Christmas Parade each year. The Center has won several awards from entering the parade competitions.

The college's Child Care Center is part of the child development technology program offered through the Vocational-Technical Division. The program prepares college level students for employment in a child development or human services occupation.

The Center is open to children of college faculty and students, plus to members of the community.

All those involved at the Child Care Center turned out for Halloween trick or treating. The Administration Building is just one of the stops on the children's lists.

Many Machines

Students in the machine shop program learn operations of at least eight different devices.

The bench, lathe, milling machine, drill press, and grinder are only a few of the different apparatuses used by students in the college's machine shop program. They also work with an electrical discharge machine, shaper, and computer numerical control milling machine.

These are fancy "shop" words not familiar to the general public. However, they become very familiar throughout the school year to students enrolled in the machine shop curriculum.

Program Coordinator James Harris said that fancy words aren't all that's learned.

"Besides working with the actual machines, the students also work in the classroom studying basic shop mathematics, blueprint reading, the theory of machine tools and welding as it relates to the course," he said.

Meeting five days per week, the course is a two-year curriculum that prepares students to enter industry as an entry level machinist or advanced apprentice. Completion of the course sees students able to efficiently perform the fundamental operations and setups of machine tools.

Harris added, "There is also a big emphasis placed on attitudes toward the job, co-workers, safety and pride in their work."

Career opportunities for graduates include employment in industrial machining companies, tool and die establishments, industrial inspection, industrial maintenance, or self-employment.

Applicants for admission into the course must meet several requirements required by the vocational-technical division. They include having an application and transcript on file at the college, being 18 years of age upon completion of the course, and being interviewed by the instructor prior to registration. Students are also tested for deficiencies in language, reading, and mathematics, with additional instruction available for those who need improvement.

Under The Hood

Automotive mechanics students learn all there is to know about making a vehicle run.

Danny Polk of Prentiss, right, watches a transmission demonstration by program coordinator Evins Henderson.

Career opportunities seem endless for graduates of the college's auto mechanics program.

According to program coordinator Evins Henderson, "Those completing the two-year curriculum can find work at automotive service centers, new and used automobile dealerships, independent repair shops, specialty centers, and city, county, and state repair shops."

Henderson said the program is designed to prepare students to enter the labor market as entry level auto mechanics or as advanced apprentices.

The curriculum taught includes such areas as shop safety, use of hand and power tools, and automotive electronics, emissions systems, and air conditioning. Wheel alignment, brake systems, engine inspection, and welding are also included as areas covered by the course.

Students must meet several entrance requirements before being accepted in the program. They include having an application and school transcript on file in the Admissions Office, being of legal working age (18) upon completion of the course, and completing an interview by the instructor prior to registration.

Also, applicants have to take achievement and aptitude tests as determined necessary for entry. All full time students must take the Adult Basic Education test. Deficiencies shown from taking the exams may indicate a need for additional instruction in certain areas such as language, reading, and mathematics.

Sixty-eight semester hours of credit are completed by the students, and they receive a vocational certificate in automotive mechanics. Many go on to pursue further training in a specialized automotive field.

The program is certified by the National Institute of Automotive Service Excellence.

Blue Wave Band Battles Budget Cuts

Without the funds needed to travel, the band still shines during marching season.

From watching the performances at home football games, no one would have suspected that the college's marching band was experiencing some financial problems that may affect what sports fans will see during next year's halftime shows.

Percussion member David Montgomery of Bogue Chitto, commented, "Recruiting band members for next year has been more difficult because you can tell high school students where you have traveled during marching season, and if you haven't been anywhere it's hard to make it sound good."

The Blue Wave band loaded the bus for only one away game at Hinds this year, and Band Director Stanley Stewart said he felt morale had suffered.

"The inability to compete hurt the band," he said.

Michael Clark of Monticello backed up Stewart's statement by saying, "It put a damper on the spirits of band members because we couldn't travel to far away schools."

Take Two Of These . . .

. . . and call me in the morning. Members of Alpha Omega are learning the health field lingo plus a whole lot more.

Even though Alpha Omega science fraternity is mainly made up of students majoring in science fields, President Tim Lott of New Hebron is quick to point out that the organization is open to anyone with an interest in science.

Lott said, ``You certainly don't have to be a science major, but you do have to have at least a 2:75 grade point average.'' Lott said that there is definitely an advantage for those in health related fields.

``Each spring the group takes a tour of the University Medical Center in Jackson and also of two veterinary clinics in Brookhaven,'' he said.

Lott added that he feels membership in Alpha Omega helps science students to make up their minds about what specific major they want to pursue. Students at Co-Lin can choose from a variety of science fields such as pre-pharmacy, pre-medicine, and pre-nursing.

Alpha Omega raises money each year for special projects, and in the fall the group provided funds for a new computer table in the science department. The funds also allowed the department to upgrade the memory on it's Macintosh computer.

``Other clubs in the past have also made donations to the department,'' Lott said.

The organization has approximately 40 members and Dr. Doug Schexnayder and Ron Williamson serve as advisors.

A New Charter

Members of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers get a boost as their unit gains charter status.

The college's student unit of the Society of Manufacutring Engineers held it's chartering ceremony on January 17, and according to advisor Sarah McQuillin, it was a goal the group had been working on for over two years.

McQuillin said, "We had to meet several requirements to become a charter unit."

Those requirements included having a minimum of 15 members, being sponsored by a state or regional professional chapter, having an advisor who holds an SME membership, and abiding by the rules of the national organization.

"The college also has to offer curriculums related to manufacturing," she said, "which are electronics, industrial systems technology, and machine shop, to name a few."

The unit is sponsored by professional chapter #141 in Jackson, and the students meet with this group once a month to gain insight into the career world.

McQuillin said, "It's good for our members because they make a lot of business contacts at these meetings."

Currently, the college's unit has 26 members and four advisors, and McQuillin said that anyone is eligible to join to unit.

She said, "Even though many people think of us as a vo-tech group, we also welcome academic students as well. It's good for all of them to see what's going on in the work environment - from line work to management."

William Hardin of Brookhaven, SME treasurer, passes fruit down the assembly line as he and other members of the unit prepare Christmas holiday baskets. SME distributed the baskets to the community as a service project.

Clifford Britt, a member of the Mississippi House of Representatives, speaks to SME members during a regular monthly meeting. He talked to the group about the 1990 legislative session and also showed them a slide presentation.

SME members Todd Evans of Sontag, front, and David Neal of Monticello, stare in amazement at the fruit baskets the all-male group put together.

Student Welfare

The Student Government Association looks out for its fellow man and works for campus improvements.

Elected by the student body, it is only logical that the main concern of the Student Government Association is the welfare of the college's students.

Cassondra Berch of Wesson, sophomore secretary, said that discussion at SGA meetings usually centers around curfews and parking. Curfew at the college is 1 a.m. for both men and women dormitory residents. Failure to abide by the code results in a visit to the dean of student services office.

Berch said, "Even though we have discussed this, there haven't been any changes made in the policy."

Parking has been a problem approached by the SGA for a long time too. As enrollment increases each year, parking spaces don't.

The organization also sponsors several events and activities on campus each year including the homecoming dance, open dorm visitation, drug awareness week, and blood drives.

SGA Sponsor Ray Ishee said that between 75 and 100 students gave blood in November.

"We usually have a good turnout," Ishee said.

Sponsored by Mississippi Blood Services, students giving blood are given a T-shirt for their donation.

Co-Lin's SGA organization meets twice a month and also discusses proposals brought to them by other organizations on campus which have special concerns of their own.

Blazing Trails

From serving at banquets to recruiting new students, the Trailblazers are the most versatile group on campus.

Standing up in front of a group of people and giving a talk on a specific subject frightens many students just to have such a thought. However, when the speakers are the Trailblazers and the subject is Co-Lin, a lively group discussion seems only natural.

The Trailblazers have earned the label of being the college's public relations and recruiting organization which goes into district high schools and tells seniors about the opportunities that await them at Co-Lin.

Ann Bradberry, the group's sponsor, said, "Candidates for membership in the organization are carefully screened for their ability to communicate in front of an audience."

Each applicant goes through a rigid interview process by current members and by college staff members. Selection is not only based on speaking ability, but also on other factors such as their attitudes towards the college, what high school they attended, and their appearance.

Bradberry said, "Consideration is also given to their majors and personalities."

Though mainly a recruiting group, the members also act as hosts and hostesses at campus events such as High School Day and "Explore Co-Lin First." They play a big part in annual homecoming festivities and in ushering at special programs.

Smiles are a big part of the college's public relations campaign. Trailblazers Chan Willis of Magee, left, and Hope Eavenson of Mendenhall, greet homecoming guests in October.

PTK Pays Tribute

Eta Omega Chapter honors those called into active duty in Operation Desert Shield.

"Tie A Yellow Ribbon Round The Old Oak Tree" was a hit song during the 1970's for the group "Tony and Dawn." The song became a household saying in the fall as people all across the United States tied yellow ribbons for armed forces activated as part of Operation Desert Shield.

In October, the Eta Omega Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa honor society also tied a ribbon in front of Ewing Administration Building as their tribute to those called into active duty.

Co-advisor Pam Truhett said, "This tribute was not only for those who are now in the Middle East, but it was also for those who have been activated to fill positions here at home.

Students, faculty, and staff members attended the ceremony, and College President Dr. Billy Thames gave a few remarks.

Two staff members, several students, and members of students' families were called from guard units in Crystal Springs, Brookhaven, and Monticello.

Dr. Thames said that the college was doing everything possible to accommodate the needs of those called who are connected with the institution.

"The board adopted a policy allowing these military students to get a refund of their tuition for the semester and also of the unused portion paid on room and board," he said.

Phi Theta Kappa chose to hold this ceremony as one of several service projects the group is involved in during the year. PTK also picks up trash on the Highway 51 as part of the state's "Adopt-A-Highway" project, and the organization recognizes the work of college employees by presenting them with apples on PTK Founder's Day. These are only a few of the projects of Eta Omega.

Business Minded

Phi Beta Lambda continues to compile honors, with over 95 awards won in the past 10 years.

Approximately 80 state awards and 15 national honors have been bestowed upon Phi Beta Lambda over a 10 year period - not a shabby record when going up against excellent competition from junior and senior colleges across the nation.

According to Phi Beta Lambda Advisor Jean Ricks, "There are over 30 chapters in Mississippi and over 500 in all 50 states."

Co-Lin's Nu Kappa Chapter is composed of mostly post-secondary business majors, and the purpose of the organization is to develop strong, aggressive leadership among future businessmen and women so they will be more effective in business and the community.

PBL Reporter Ivan Burghard of Crystal Springs gave his own definition of the group, "It helps improve your business skills and professional attitude."

Members work on various business-related projects throughout the year which they then present at state and national conferences each year. Categories include economics, business law, political science, business decision making, and others.

Ricks said that professionals in the business sector visit PBL meetings each semester to talk to members about their area of expertise. Topics have included time and stress management, job interview skills, business ethics, and more.

Membership requirements for Nu Kappa Chapter are that a student should be majoring in business or a business-related field. The group also accepts those in other majors who are enrolled in business courses.

Let's Get Involved

Club Fair means involvement in campus organizations for first-time students and for sophomores who haven't participated before.

"We're looking for a few good club members," were the words spoken by college organization members during the annual Club Fair held in early September.

One organization member that was recruiting new faces for Phi Theta Kappa was President Charles Jackson of Roxie who said that Club Fair is an opportunity for groups to pick up some really good students.

He said, "We come in contact with students through Club Fair that we might not otherwise see around the campus, and they usually turn out to be some of the best members."

"It's also a great way for freshmen to familiarize themselves with the different groups. Some of them don't realize how many organizations there actually are," Jackson said.

When asked how Club Fair works, Jackson explained that each group has a table set up in the cafeteria with information available on that particular organization.

"If the student is interested in that club, then he/she signs a list and then it is the responsibility of the club to see that the prospective member receives more information," Jackson added.

Jackson certainly knows his stuff when it comes to questions about organizations on campus. He served throughout the year not only as president of PTK, but also as Student Government Association president, Phi Beta Lambda vice president, Baptist Student Union devotional chairman, and as a member of the Handicapped Program Advisory Committee.

According to Burlian Walker, who has been the advisor and general manager of Co-Lin's radio station for 10 years, "Club Fair not only reaches freshmen, but also sophomore students who hadn't shown an interest in joining during their first year at the college."

"We always get some good disc jockeys through Club Fair," he said.

Organizations which participate in the fair each year are Phi Theta Kappa, Vocational-Technical Clubs of America (VICA), choir, Student Christian Association, WCLL-FM radio staff, Society of Manufacturing Engineers, Phi Beta Lambda, and many others.

Student Christian Association Adviser James Harris, left, and Baptist Student Union Sponsor Roy Smith, look for some prospective members for their organizations. The other Christian organization on campus is the Wesley Foundation.

Ivan Burghard of Crystal Springs, a sophomore, takes a break from recruiting new members for Phi Theta Kappa during Club Fair. Burghard serves as project chairman for the group.

Vo-Tech Counselor Bob Huckaby discusses the advantages of joining the Vocational-Technical Clubs of America (VICA) with a student. VICA is one of the college's largest organizations and represents those enrolled in the vo-tech programs.

Getting In Shape - Basketball player Albert Webb of Homer, La., works for a perfect body on the bench press. Spotter is Derrick Pickett of Crystal Springs.

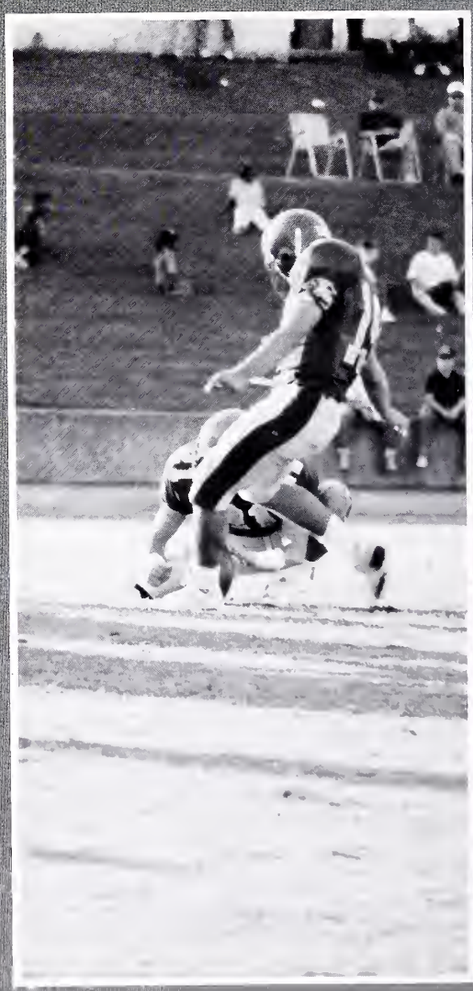
Baseball Coach Steve Blackmon looks at the potential of his team during an intersquad game played on homecoming day. The Grey Team, made up of freshmen, got a 6-5 victory over the Blues.

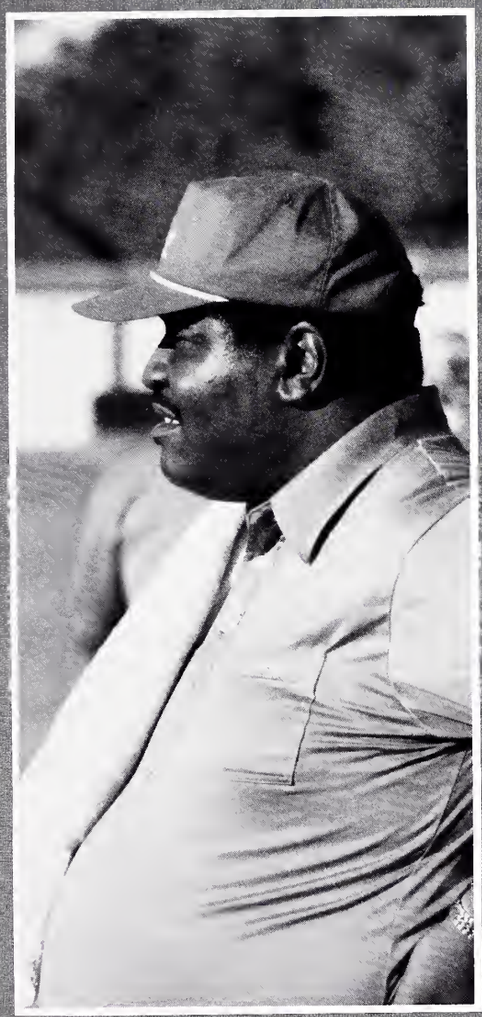


Wolfpack Kicker Greg Scoggins of Dothan, Ala., attempts one of many field goals he put through the uprights during football season. Scoggins finished the season with first team all-state honors.

Picture The Moment

From tackles, tight ends, guards, and goals, to pars, pitches, balls and brawls . . .

Everybody loves sports!



Wolfpack Wide Receiver Coach Charles Sutton keeps his towel across his shoulder. Hot football afternoons had everyone dripping with perspiration.

Forward Tangela Jones tries for two against Pearl River in the first south division game of the season. Jones scored 10 points in the 77-63 victory over the Wildcats.

It isn't hard to picture the exciting sports events that happened on the campus this year. The five overtime loss to Itawamba in the state playoffs won't soon be forgotten, nor the astonishing ability of the nationally ranked Lady Wolves basketball team. It was a good year for sports at the college. While some were working to improve for a better season next year, others were winning championships and bringing home the trophy.

Hey, Coach!

Football players depend on coaches to help them "be the best they can be."

Almost everyday of the year, the Co-Lin coaches heard at least one of their players say the words "Hey, coach!" It usually wasn't to say hello, but to get the coach's attention which then led to a series of questions.

Most of the time it was about football, but there were also questions about grades, finances, or things back home.

Offensive Lineman Donnie Arender of Tallulah, La., said that the college's coaching staff had definitely earned his respect.

"They always know exactly what they are doing and what needs to be done," Arender said.

He added, "They got the best out of us in their own way."

Co-Lin has established one of the best coaching staffs in the Mississippi community college system.

First year head coach Randall Bradberry took this year's young, but aggressive players and produced an 8-3 overall record and a south division championship.

Wide Receiver Roger Ogden of Natchez said of Coach Bradberry, "Coach Bradberry did an excellent job. Most first year coaches don't just come in and win the south division championship."

Defensive End Chaucer Funchess of Magee also praised Defensive Coordinator Phil Broome, a first year rookie in that position.

"He did a great job getting us ready for every ballgame," Funchess said.

Other members of the coaching staff include Offensive Line Coach Bob Ricketts, Defensive Back Coach Alton Greenlee, Wide Receiver Coaches Charles Sutton and Curtis Hobbs, and Defensive End and Linebacker Coach Herbert Davis.

Arender said of Coach Ricketts, "He's one of the best coaches around."

Glen Thomas, a wingback from Meadville, said, "The coaching staff let you express yourself on the field."

The coaches didn't stop taking care of their players after the season was over either. They worked to get the sophomore players scholarships at four-year colleges and universities with most of them signing on the dotted line.

The 1990 Wolfpack had a 8-3 overall record, 5-0 south division record, south division championship, and a berth in the first round of the state playoffs.

All Tangled Up - Tony Smith, a 5'9" - 185 running back from Magee, gets wrapped up in the Southwest defense on Oct. 6. Helping Smith out is Raymond Batiste, a 6'4" - 295 offensive lineman from New Orleans, La.

It's hard to tell if Head Football Coach Randall Bradberry is yelling at a referee or at one of his players. Whoever it is, they probably got the message.

Mitch Holloway of Natchez gets a punt off during a game.

'91 Projections

Returning football players predict the 1991 season to be as good or better than that of 1990.

What started out as a bad omen for the 1990 Wolfpack may turn out to be its strongest asset in 1991. With the majority of offensive lineman returning for next season, the line may be a deciding factor in many games.

Also, with quarterback Allen Thomas returning, the team should be able to form a solid offensive attack.

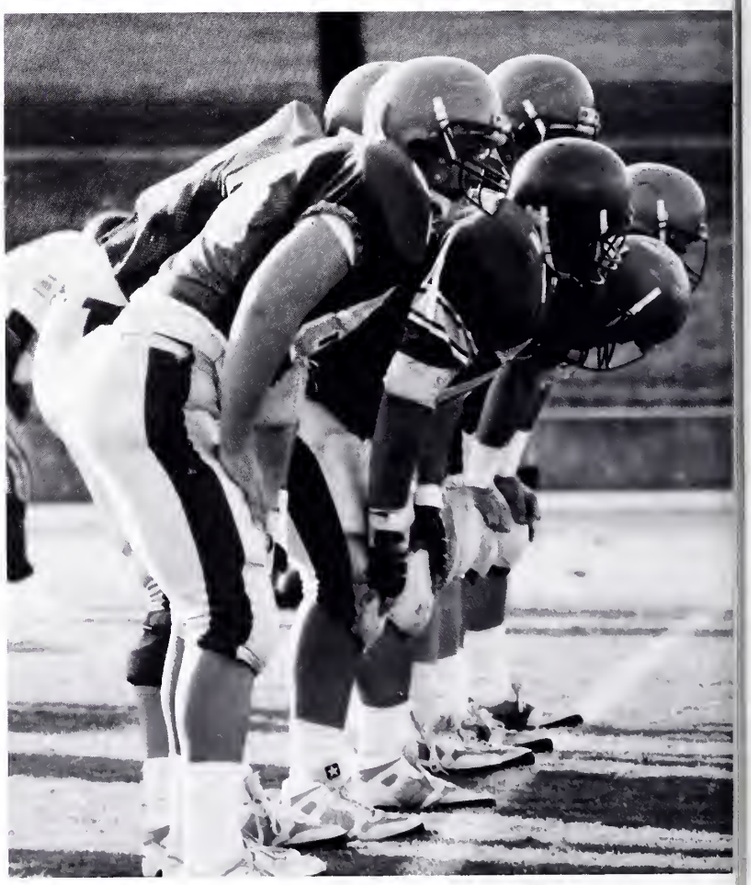
Aaron Owens, a 6'2" - 180 wide receiver from Brookhaven, said, "I think we'll win the state championship."

Sophomore players began practicing in the spring, lifting weights and running, and according to Tight End Mitch Holoway of Natchez, "We hit a lot and worked on techniques during spring training."

Wolfpack coaches will be looking for a few defensive backs and ends to fill positions for next season. Spring and summer recruiting should see this become a reality.

> "I think we'll win the state championship."
> Aaron Owens

Other returners getting high marks from fellow team members are kicker Greg Scoggins of Dothan, Ala., and linebacker Sean Yeldon of Clearwater, Fla.



Lining Up - Mitch Holloway, and other players on the Wolfpack football team are ready for the next play.

Glen Thomas, a 6'0"-195 wingback from Meadville, gains some yardage for the Wolves.

INTENSE! Offensive lineman Mike Smith of Ocala, Fla., was one of the main spirit rousers for the Wolfpack. Here, he concentrates on the game against Itawamba in the playoffs.

Taking A Break - Wide Receiver Roger Ogden of Natchez chews on a piece of ice. Ogden received honorable mention all-state honors.

Slip Slidin' Away

Most losses for the Wolves have come in the last minute of the game.

The title of the old Paul Simon tune "Slip Slidin' Away" seems to sum up the Wolves 1990-91 basketball season. Even the song's lyrics held true for the team - "You know the nearer the destination the more you're slip slidin' away."

It seemed the closer the Wolfpack came to a victory this season, the more disappointing the final score turned out to be.

Forward Luther Bonds of Meadville explained it like this, "We would be winning, then the buzzer would go off, and we would have gotten beat by only a few points."

> "... that one just slipped away from us."
> Luther Bonds

One heartstopper came on Jan. 21 when the Southwest Bears scored on the buzzer to win by two.

Bonds said, "The games like that one just slipped away from us."

Another close one that slid through the hands of the Wolves was a four point loss to the Hinds Eagles at Utica. The Wolfpack lost control of a five point halftime lead and were defeated 80-76.

Hinds used the press in the second half causing several Co-Lin "fumbles."

"We just didn't do a good job handling the basketball," Head Coach Paul Johnson said.

"The guys do a good job, though," he said, "They're improving all the time."

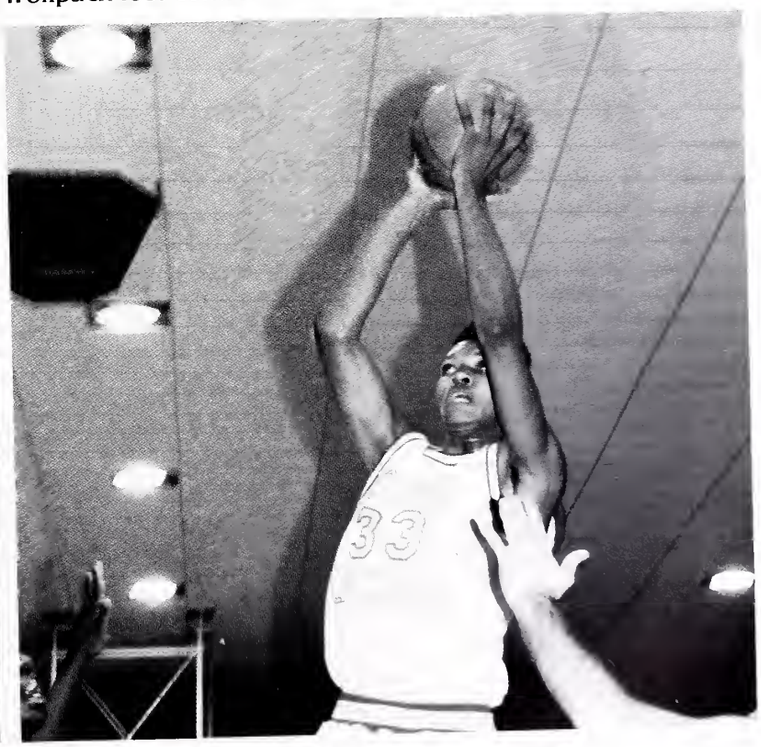
When asked how team spirits were, Bonds said, "We try to keep each other up and that way we keep on playing hard in every game."

Bonds said he and team member Terry Cameron work extra hard to keep things upbeat.

"We try to keep everyone going whether we are winning or losing," Bonds said.

Coach Johnson said that as far as attitudes are concerned, "This team is the greatest. They all get along with each other extremely well."

Terry Cameron, the leading scorer for the Wolfpack, lets go of a short jumper. Cameron shoots well from the perimeter or from the inside.



Sophomore Luther Bonds of Meadville is a leading rebounder for the Wolves. In mid season, he was bringing down 5.2 rebounds per game.

The Wolfpack's Golden Child

Wolves basketball player Terry Cameron has been the man with the magic touch during a not-so-magic roundball season.

Sophomore guard Terry Cameron came to Co-Lin from St. Patrick's High School in Chicago, Ill., and he brought with him a shooting percentage of 22 points per game.

He also brought with him the experience that an 8-time tournament MVP possesses. As the college's top scorer this season, Cameron has been a team leader on and off the court.

Teammate Luther Bonds said of Cameron, "He keeps us going," and Head Coach Paul Johnson is the first to admit the sophomore is a guiding light.

The University of Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles were also impressed. They signed Cameron as a member of their nationally ranked team, and he joins two former Co-Lin standouts, Darrin Jenkins and Russell Johnson.

Cameron takes to USM a 74 percent free throw average and a 39 percent field goal average. He brings down 4 rebounds per game and has 4.8 assists per game.

The cards just didn't fall into place for Cameron and the other members of the Wolfpack this season. Most losses were within two or three points in games where the team had held leads.

Freshman Maurey Owens of Natchez follows through on a short jumper.

Calvin Westley, a freshman point guard from Houma, La., tries to get the ball to the basket.

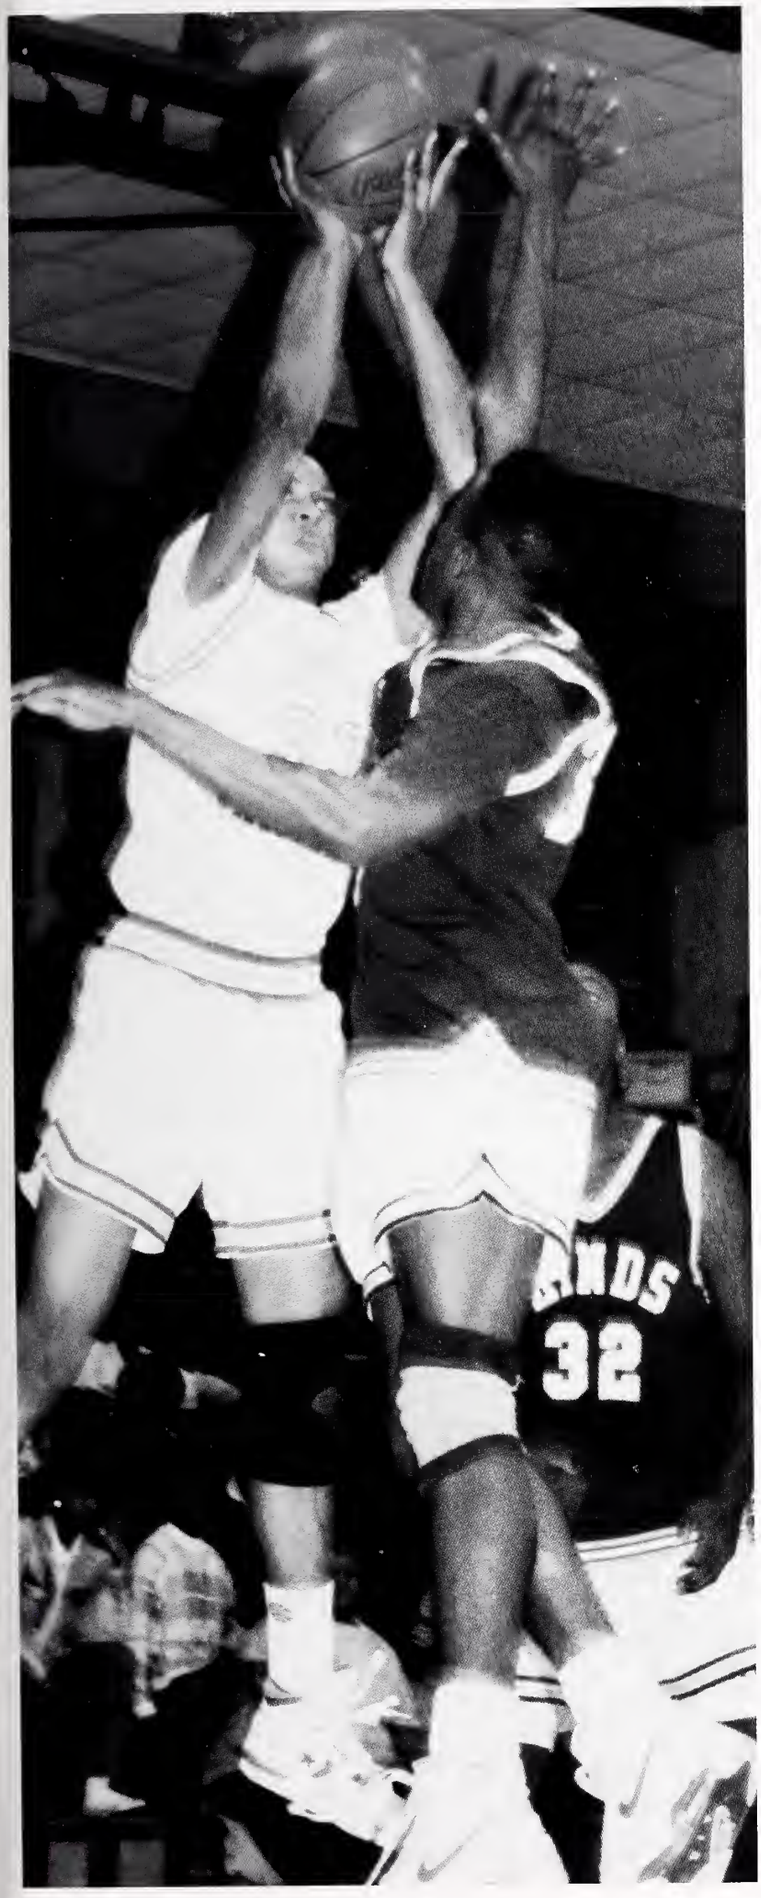
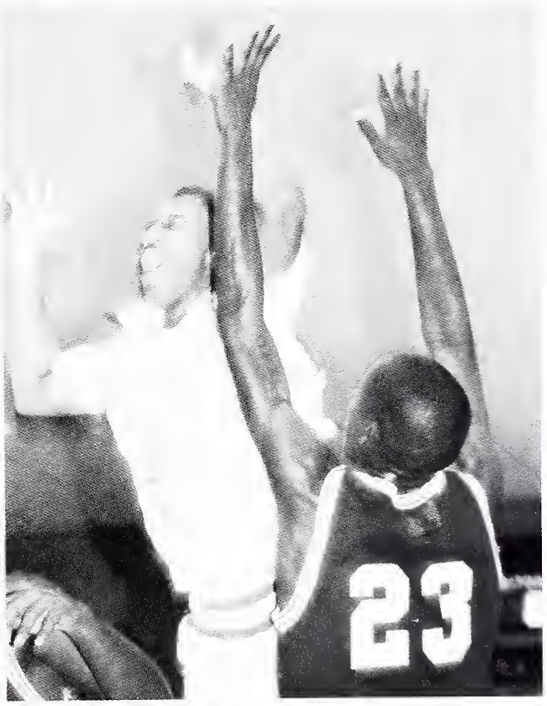
In February, Co-Lin's leading scorer Terry Cameron was averaging 22.8 points per game.



Forward Derrick Pickett of Crystal Springs reaches for the glass as the defense works to keep him away.



Terry Cameron will play roundball for the USM Golden Eagles in Hattiesburg next season.

Post player Luther Bonds shows off that 6'6½" frame. Bonds' shooting percentage was in double figures and he grabbed 5.2 rebounds per game.

Jones Ranked Number One

Region 23 coaches make Tangela Jones their first choice in January as the Lady Wolves go for the gold.

To be one of the best community college basketball players in the state, people would think that forward Tangela Jones of Natchez had picked up a basketball at birth.

"I didn't begin playing until the sixth grade, and the only reason I started then was because my sister played," Jones admitted.

Jones didn't make the first team until the eighth grade, but she has been on that team ever since.

Averaging 21.3 points and 9.9 points per game at Co-Lin, Jones said she decided to play at the college because "Coach Young seemed to really want me here more than the other coaches did."

Standing at only 5'8", Jones credits her rebound ability to her quickness.

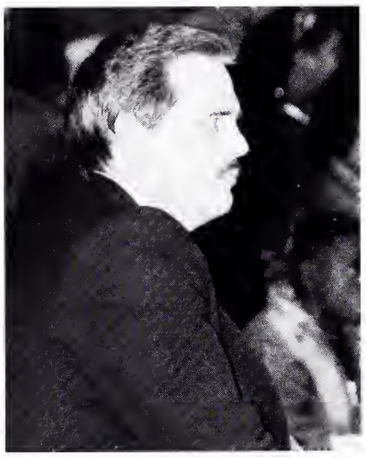
"Coach Young really works us with rebound drills too," she said.

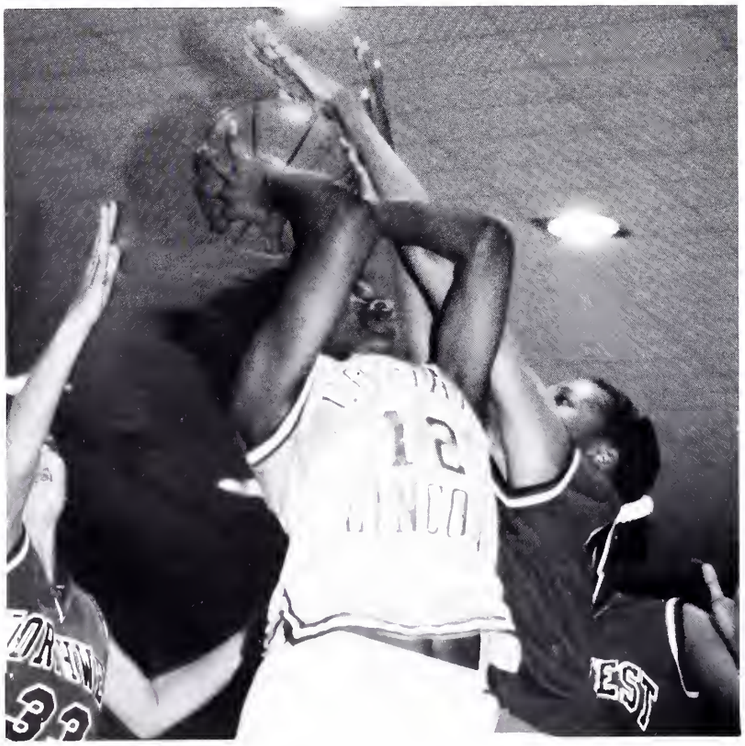
Besides giving credit to her coach for the team's success this season, Jones is quick to mention her teammates.

She said, "We have a good team - better than expected. We work well together, and the team as a whole has a good attitude."

Labeled one of the best JUCO players in the state, forward Tangela Jones has been recruited by several senior colleges.

Head Coach Gwyn Young has been producing winning basketball teams since the mid '70s.





Tangela Jones goes for two as the Northwest defense works to block the shot. The Rangers didn't fair well against Jones who had 19 for the night.

Freshman Pam Johnson of Jonesville, La., gets some playing time against the Rangers. The 5'8" forward/post player attended Block High School.

A recruit from the state championship team at Mendenhall High School, forward Anita Benton has been a welcome asset.

Injury: A Nightmare On Winning Street

Four Lady Wolves suffer from knee, ankle, and nose injuries while a perfect 17-0 record and a top ten national ranking bite the dust.

Thursday, Jan. 24, is a day that Lady Wolves Head Coach Gwyn Young won't soon forget. On that day, his team, ranked 5th nationally, beat the Pearl River Lady Wildcats by a score of 68-53.

However, the team didn't come back to Wesson with smiles. They came back with one sprained ankle and two knee injuries. Injuries sustained by three starters for the Lady Wolves team which was boasting a perfect 17-0 overall record.

The team's leading scorer and rebounder, Tangela Jones of Natchez, underwent knee surgery on Jan. 30, and doctors said she might return for the beginning of tournament play at the end of February.

Other injuries were sustained by guard Lauria Williams of Natchez who sprained her ankle, and Anita Benton of Mendenhall who hurt a knee.

Then, on Mon., Jan 28, guard Kim Herrin of Bogue Chitto collided with a player from Coahoma and broke her nose. She was filling in for one of the others who had been injured.

The Coahoma game was the first loss for the Lady Wolves, a 77-71 defeat in overtime.

Despite having hurt starters, Young praised those that came to the rescue.

He said, "We had a lot of people come off the bench and do a good job for us including Herrin, Karla Adams, and Pam A. Johnson."

"They've done especially well on defense," he added.

The team went on to capture the south tourney.

Guard Lauria Williams of Natchez goes for two points against the Hinds Lady Eagles. Both teams beat each other at home.

Point guard Shannon Montgomery of Walker, La., tried to hold things together while three of her fellow starters were nursing injuries.

Forward Tangela Jones of Natchez lays in the easy two as Shannon Montgomery watches from the floor.

Shannon Montgomery, the Lady Wolves point guard, gets a grin out of Coach Gwyn Young. Montgomery was a major force for the team, both offensively and defensively.

Several players came off the bench during the season to lend a helping hand. Karla Adams of Brookhaven was one Coach Young said "did a good job."

Sophomore Renee Barnes of Bogue Chitto leaves the opponent at the other end of the court for this quick layup.

Veteran Advantage

Last year's state/regional champions are depending on experience from three sophomores.

This year's tennis team has been on a mission to match the success of last year's team.

In 1989-90, the Wolves were state and Region 23 champions, while also finishing ninth in the nation. This was the highest finish ever for a Mississippi community college team.

With these accomplishments now in the past, Tennis Coach Mike McIntyre is still glad to have three of last year's players returning as sophomores.

The team will be depending on the experience of three veterans including Corey Verrett of Morgan City, La., Wyatt Sharp of Natchez, and Brian Porter of Pattison.

New recruit Casey Ham is also a welcome addition to the Wolfpack roster, as are first year players Donnie White and Brad Ishee, both of Wesson, and Paul Leake of Natchez. Jim Hunter of Brookhaven and Tyson Nelson of Monticello finish the line-up.

Coach McIntyre has returned for his 13th season with the team.

He commented about this year's group, "I feel confident about things now. First semester we had only two proven players returning from last year's state championship team"

"Some people might think you would be loaded with players after last year's top ten finish. However, this is a non-scholarship sport, and it's hard to recruit," he said.

Quality Pitching

The Wolves' success this season rides heavily on the arms of the pitching staff.

As the college baseball team began its season in late February against Clarke, Head Coach Steve Blackmon knew the outcome of this and every game would probably depend on how well his pitchers performed.

Coach Blackmon commented about the staff, "There are some good athletes out here who can get the job done."

Freshman pitcher Bubba Matherne gives the ball a whirl.

This pitcher shows that perfect pitching form.

Playing in a tough south division in the Mississippi community college system, Blackmon said he was confident the Wolves could stay in the race for the championship.

He also admitted that baseball scholarships had made a difference in bringing in more talent to the team. This is one of the first years Co-Lin has offered any type of financial assistance to players.

One setback for the Wolves was the loss of two key players who didn't return for the season. According to Blackmon, these two could have helped the team.

Sophomore pitchers include Ken Cummings of Roxie, Jody Herring of Meadville, Roger Hunkapillar of Hazlehurst, and Joey Landry of Ponchatoula, La.

Blackmon lists five freshmen as pitchers also. They are Tom Dickerson of Brookhaven, Kenny Hammond of Denham Springs, La., Todd Cary of Silver Creek, Bryan Jackson of Natchez, and Bubba Matherne of LaRose, La.

Let That Wolfpack Spirit Show

Stacks, stunts, shouts, and lots of spirit were a few of the ingredients that made this year's cheerleading squad one of the best ever.

What a mouth! Lane Smith of Wesson uses a little lung power at the homecoming game.

This year's cheerleaders agreed that it took more than just an ability to cheer to make the squad a good one. They said the talent doesn't necessarily come naturally.

Cheerleader Lane Smith of Wesson, said, "We attended two camps during the summer and worked from daylight until dark."

Sandy Duncan of Monticello, added, "The camps definitely helped us a lot."

They all agreed that being a cheerleader takes a lot of time and dedication. Smith said he feels it takes a lot of courage on the part of the men squad members because men cheerleaders are "usually looked upon as sissies."

Clay Rich of Brookhaven and Jennifer Patrick of Mendenhall said that there were many benefits to being a cheerleader at the college.

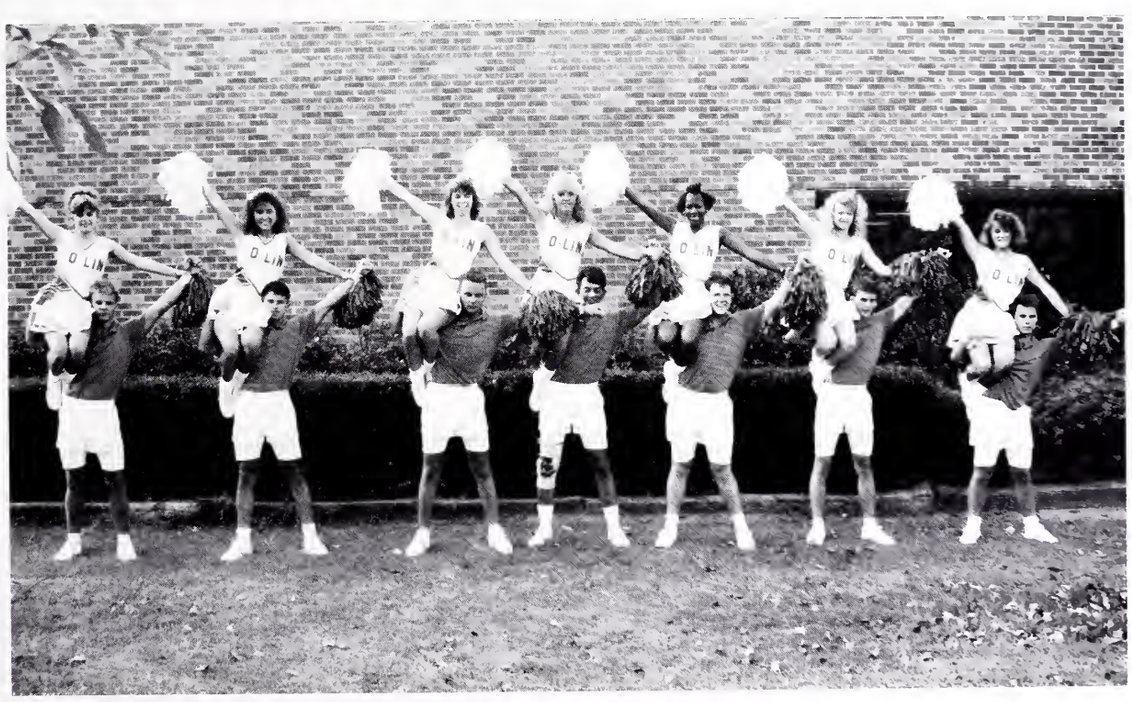
They said that being with friends is a major asset as is meeting new people and just having fun.

Stunts seem to be another favorite part of cheerleading, and this year's squad said that both stacks and stunts were easier to do because there was an even number of men and women.

The cheerleaders also credited sponsor David Smith with their success this year. They said he was always a big help with any problems they had and that he always did what he could for them.

Duncan said, "I've been a cheerleader since the seventh grade, and this year has been the best yet."

Sandy Duncan of Monticello gets way up in the air on this cheer as two of the guys lift her off the ground.

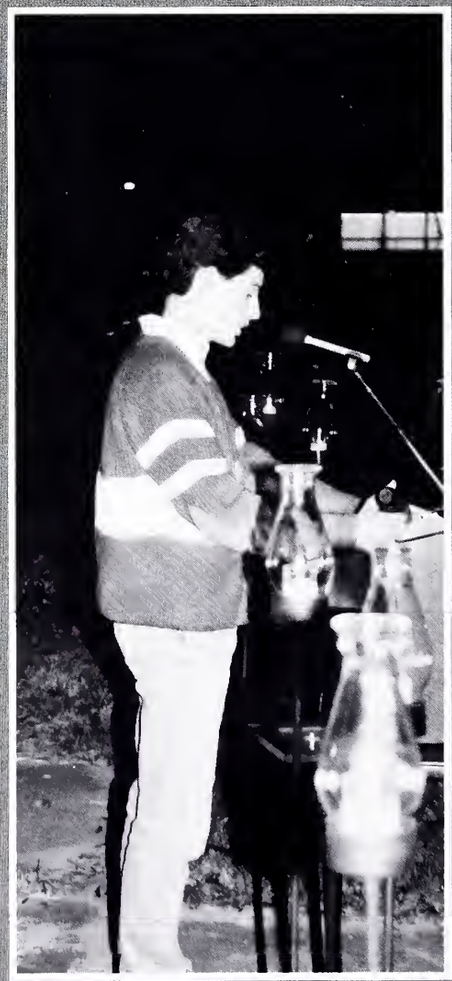


Members of this year's squad are, standing, l to r, Timmy Tindle, Meadville; Scott Ham and Shane Tuttle, both of Natchez; Lane Smith, Wesson; Tim Lott, New Hebron; Clay Rich, Brookhaven; and Chad Savage, Braxton. Seated, Casey Carlton, Crystal Springs; Jennifer Patrick,Mendenhall; Amy Hart, Brookhaven; Deanna Smith, Wesson; India Hunter, Loyd Star; Dawn Russell, head cheerleader, Wesson; and Sandy Duncan, Monticello.

Homecoming court members sweat it out on one of the hottest reunion days in the history of the college. No one could remember when the temperature had been any warmer at homecoming festivities on Oct. 6.

Lady Wolves Head Coach Gwyn Young asks, "Where is my help," as he refinishes the gym floor in August. Varnishing the floor is a yearly project for Young and Coach Paul Johnson.

Mmm Mmm Good! Humanities Division Chairman Durr Walker gnaws down on a fish fillet at the annual faculty fish fry. The event is held each year during the week of faculty meetings.



PTK Officer Stuart Rich of Brookhaven gives a speech at the organization's Founder's Day ceremony. The ceremony, held at Whitworth College in Brookhaven, was dedicated to the memory of Dr. Margaret Mosal.

Pictures Last Forever

Smiles from friends,
laughs from classmates,
people make Co-Lin

It's because of the people that Co-Lin has become a great place to learn and to work. Employees of the college enjoy the atmosphere just as much as the students do. It's a friendly environment, distinct with sounds of laughter, warmhearted conversation, and congenial smiles. Memories are made to last forever here.

Discussing The Details

The college's board of trustees spends one day a month addressing important issues that affect the future of the institution.

On the first Thursday of each month, excluding January and July, the college board comes together to discuss concerns of the institution.

According to Co-Lin President Dr. Billy Thames, the trustees talk about everything from the hiring of personnel to the setting of school policies.

"They are the governing body of the college that have full power to operate the district," Dr. Thames said.

Currently, there are 27 members on the board. Nineteen were appointed by county supervisors, seven were automatically elected because they are county superintendents of education, and one is appointed by the board itself.

At each meeting there are new proposals which are brought up,and then there are routine matters which are taken care of. There is always discussion on upgrading of facilities, finances, and programs.

Whatever discussion centers around, the board knows that their decisions will affect the student or employee, and careful consideration is given to each item on the agenda.

Members of the Board of Trustees are: first row, l to r, Dale Sullivan, Copiah County; Sidney Parker, Simpson County; Harriet Vickers, public information director; L. G. Young, Franklin County; Dr. J.H. Stribling, chairman, Lincoln County; Tommy Sasser, Lincoln County; and Harold Luther Smith, Lincoln County. Dr. Garner Has Numerous Responsibilities

In charge of the college's instructional program, the college dean does more than his part.

Just to say that College Dean Dr. Howell Garner is responsible for the institution's instructional program doesn't justly acknowledge the scope of his obligations.

He is supervisor of college faculty and of instructional units such as learning resources, adult and continuing education, vocational-technical programs, the Natchez Campus, and the Admissions Office.

Planning and updating programatic needs of the college are also on his list of "things to do."

He said, "This means keeping up with educational innovations such as computer assisted instruction, staff development, and the use of interactive video by students."

Dr. Garner said he considers the most important part of his job to be effectively working with people. This is also the best part, he said, and he claims the worst part is the "tons of paperwork."

Being in such a demanding position, Dr. Garner also commented that he finds it hard to give his family the time they deserve.

"There are so many things going on at night that I have to attend," he said, adding, "I make a strong effort to make time for them."

Dr. Garner goes over Natchez Campus curricula with Natchez Dean Travis Thornton. Part of Dr. Garner's job is overseeing this campus's instructional program.

Bob Huckaby Now - This is Bob Huckaby in 1991, vocational-technical guidance counselor.

Bob Huckaby Then - He came to the college in 1966 as head coach of the men's basketball team.

Huckaby Honored

Vocational-Technical Counselor Bob Huckaby receives Trillium yearbook dedication.

Mr. Huckaby advises a transfer student from Alcorn. He has been counseling students for more than 24 years.

When the Trillium yearbook staff told Co-Lin President Dr. Billy Thames who they had selected to receive this year's dedication, Dr. Thames said, "I can't think of a better person to receive this honor than Mr. Huckaby."

Vocational-Technical Division Dean Louis Dugas agreed.

"Mr. Huckaby is a dedicated counselor who has touched the lives of many students in a positive and motivating manner," Dugas said.

Huckaby has been an employee at the college since 1966 when he became head coach of the men's basketball team. He held that position until 1968.

His team of 1966-67 won 13 games and lost 10, and they played in the semi-finals of the south division tournament. The 1967-68 team had a 14-7 record.

Huckaby then became the vocational-technical counselor, and to this day, advises students who enroll in that division.

A husband and father, Huckaby is married to Katherine Huckaby, the physical education division chairperson. They have two daughters and one son.

Oldest daughter Cheryl is employed by the Mississippi Audit Department, daughter Julia works for Dover Elevator in Memphis, Tenn., and son Robert attends Mississippi State University. All three children graduated from Co-Lin.

A native of Lincoln County, Huckaby moved to Wesson in 1966. He received his bachelor's degree in 1956 and his master's degree in 1968, both from Mississippi College.

He is also a member of the Copiah-Lincoln Education Association, the Mississippi Community and Junior College Counselors Association, and the Magnolia Regional Counselors Association. In his spare time, he enjoys gardening, raising cattle, ceramics, and deer hunting.

Hall of Fame Member - In 1984, Mr. Huckaby was named to the college's Athletic Hall of Fame along with Lucille Berry Shows, Jim Sinclair, Mrs. Tillman Goldbold (representing her husband), and Joe Brueck.

Bond, James Bond

Just as James Bond works for law and order in his movies, the college's security chief Ken Roberts does the same on campus.

Roberts said he finds his job a challenge, and that he has seen both the good and bad sides of being a law enforcement officer.

He said, "Meeting new people and getting to know them better is the best thing about my job, and the worst part is working such long hours."

Roberts said he enjoys his career because he had wanted to become a policeman or security officer since he got out of the military in 1955.

Since coming to Co-Lin in 1972, Roberts has seen many things happen on campus.

He said, "Once we had a streaker on campus, and one year, several boys tried to put a Volkswagen in a student's room on the second floor of the dormitory."

The Odd Couple

The label "odd couple" might be used by some to describe college instructor Dr. Jerry Dykes and his wife, Nancy, as the same is used to describe two roommates in the old movie.

The couple have varied and diverse backgrounds, but they are quick to point out that they also share many common interests.

Dr. Dykes said, "I guess our greatest common interest is our daughter."

And, even though they teach different subjects, they said they use some of the same techniques.

Mrs. Dykes said, "We both try to instill communication skills in our students. The only difference is that Jerry uses numbers and I use words."

The couple met at Co-Lin in the early 1970's while they were both teaching here.

The Little Mermen

"Fishing is the No. 1 sport in the world," according to Dr. Doug Schexnayder, biology, zoology, and physical science instructor.

Dr. Schexnayder shares his love for fishing with close friend and teaching partner Ron Williamson. They began a bass club together 10 years ago, and the club currently has 21 members from three counties.

Williamson, who has been a fisherman all his life, said, "When you're trying to catch a fish, you have to think like one and know the correct time of year and the best places to go."

Schexnayder added, "Also, there is the challenge of catching something you cannot see. It's unpredictable, but relaxing."

Dirty Dancing

"We've got to win this game," was what Tight End Mitch Holloway (#88) said ran through his mind as he blocked for a Co-Lin running back during the game against East Central. Holloway, a 6'2"-225 pound freshman from Natchez, also said that it takes a total effort from the offense to move the ball down the field well.

The Wolves had problems with their offense at the beginning of the season, and Offensive Lineman Scott Kuse of Crystal Springs said, "I wish we could just get it together." By the time the Wolves met the Northeast Tigers on Sept. 29, things seemed to have fallen into place with the Wolfpack winning the game 24-0. All the credit couldn't be given to the offense, however, with the defense keeping the Tigers away from the goal line throughout the entire game.

Play It Again, Sam

Drill charts were a fact of life for the Blue Wave Band at the beginning of the school year, as the group memorized the show design for football season. Band Director Stanley Stewart, left, said "We had to check the drill charts to make sure everything was just right," while talking to Trumpet Player Glenn Westbrook of McCall Creek.

"I tried to have the band perform as close as possible to a drum and bugle corp format," Stewart said, adding, "The drill design was this type format." He also said the group was very strong talent wise and that they worked in conditions even the postman wouldn't attempt.

I'm Your Worst Nightmare

Students with discipline problems had to face the Dean of Student Services during the year to work out the issue at hand, and many times the students dreaded the early morning "talks" with Dean Ishee. The Dean said he doesn't care for the discipline part of his job anymore than the students do.

Dean Ishee said, "I hate having to make the decision to let a kid go home rather than trying to change his attitude or behavior."

Ishee went on to say that the discipline problems with students were few and far between and that the overall student body was a good group for the 1990-91 school year. "The best thing about my job is being able to associate with students on a daily basis. As a former football coach, I didn't know as many of the students as I would have liked to have known."

Who You Gonna Call?

The college yearbook was put together this year as a historical document of events and activities at the institution, and hours of hard work went into collecting the information for the book. Besides taking photographs, there was also the task of identifying people in the pictures, a job that kept Beth Wallace of Brookhaven with a phone in her ear.

Wallace said, "We usually refer to an enrollment printout to look up the names and hometowns of students, but sometimes they aren't listed. The next step was to call the Admissions Office to ask for help, and if that didn't work we would call or hunt down anybody who might know the person in the picture."

Wallace added that she feels a yearbook could never be perfect, but that this year's staff tried their best to reach that goal.

It's Not The Men In Your Life, But The Life In Your Men

Varsity Cheerleader Scott Ham of Natchez knew that age was no requirement for becoming a member of the squad when he tried out in the spring of 1990. As the oldest cheerleader, Ham, 27, did know that cheerleading took "lots of hard work." Cheerleaders not only participated at football and basketball games, but they also spent hours in summer practice sessions and painted many signs for each of the games.

Ham said that his famous "toe touches" helped get him ready for pep rallies and games. "They helped me get psyched-up," he said.

Cheerleader Sponsor David Smith said of Ham, "He is one of the most mature, quality cheerleaders we have ever had." Smith went on to say that Ham was a good leader and a good athlete, "the kind of person we needed on our squad."

Grease Is The Word

Hundreds of students went through the college cafeteria line every day, and according to Sophomore Donna Guess of Georgetown, front, "The selection is sometimes less than appetizing." Guess did say, though, that on some occasions the food was "pretty good" and that the "fast and friendly service" was excellent. She added, "I guess when you feed large numbers of people on a daily basis it's hard to please everyone."

The cafeteria staff did do it's best this year to see that students were fed good, well-balanced meals. Also, new computer systems allowed the staff to scan identification cards which, in turn, got hungry mouths through the lines quicker than ever before.

Food Service Director Ron Kelly said the computers were needed long before now. "The computers not only tell us if a student has a meal ticket, but whether or not he/she has already eaten that day," he said.

Who Is That Masked Man?

Being the wolf mascot had its ups and downs, as the "man behind the mask," Lance Case of Wesson, growled throughout the year. He said, "Probably the worst part is trying to survive the hot and humid weather during the first weeks of football season. By the end of those games the fur on the suit was wet with sweat."

Case thought his problems with the weather were over when cooler temperatures set in around the middle of October. This didn't prove to be true. Case, who wears glasses underneath his costume, found that as the heat inside the suit built up on cold nights, his glasses began to fog up. "Sometimes I couldn't see a thing," he said.

Case did seem to enjoy his freshman year as the "college clown," wrestling with rival mascots and stirring fans into emotional frenzies at pep rallies, football games, and basketball games. However, the question that remains is, "Will he return his sophomore year to the furry conditions of the mascot suit for the love of Co-Lin sports?"

Know What I Mean?

Conversations in Union Square were a daily occurrence during lunch or after class. Sophomore Jammie Keating of Natchez, center said, "We stop and talk about anything that's on our minds. We discuss what we just had to eat in the cafeteria or what chapters we're supposed to study for a test.

Union Square was used for more than just gossip sessions. Important student elections were held there and the "Bluz Boys" band performed a spring concert there. Also, the square was the center for BSU meetings, university recruiting, lunch at the Grill, Sojourner performances, and bookstore purchases.

"It's a good place to pass some free time," Keating added.

The True Picture

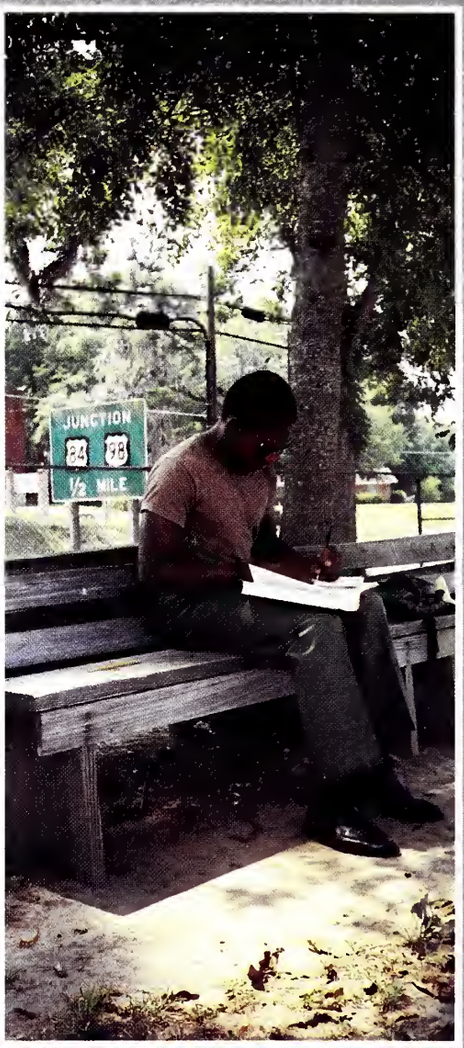
Even though the Washington and Beltline sites of Co-Lin/Natchez do not presently share the same campus site, we exist as a family, sharing the same spirit and the same common goals. We are striving to provide the best education for our students, as well as the best service for our community. We are also striving to, one day in the near future, share the same campus site.

True, we are small in size, but we are constantly growing. We have seen a significant increase in our fall enrollment. Moreover, according to Dean Thornton, "there is a twenty-five percent increase in our full time academic student enrollment.

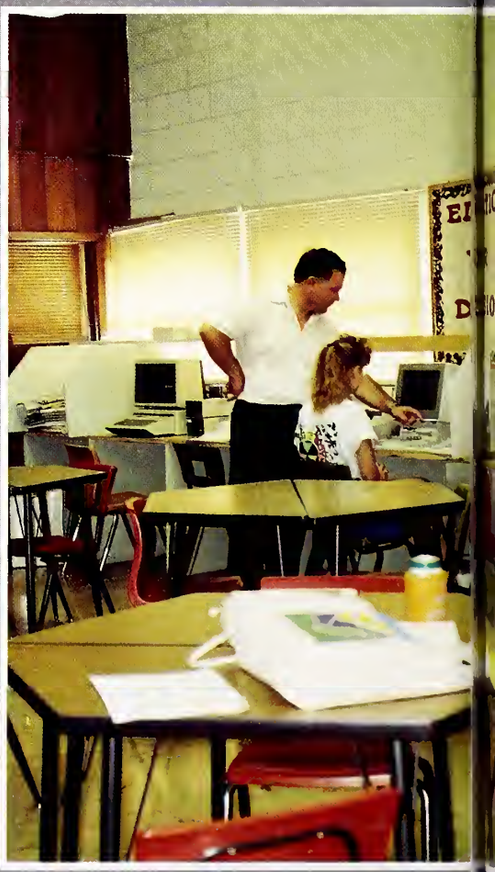
So as we move into the nineties we invite you to come and grow with us, as we begin our tomorrows, today.

Co-Lin is . . .

the true picture of dedication, growth, and success.



Donald Carter decides to catch a "breath of fresh air" while he studies for his calculus exam.



Co-Lin students find special help and attention in the Learning Resource Center. Stephanie Presley improves her computer skills with the aid of Dr. Robert Smith, while Shannon McMahon finds the center to be a quiet place for study.

Welcome to Co-Lin/Natchez. Come grow with us!

Tabitha Wroten, Beth Mason and Melissa Maxie find the literature describing the various groups and club organizations to be very enlightening.

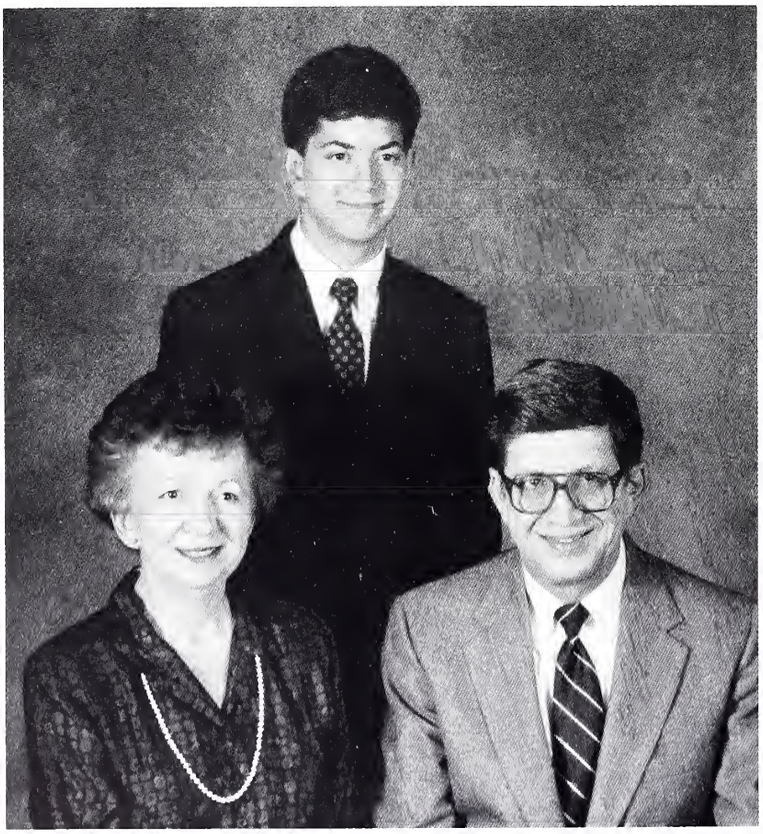
Travis Thornton Associate Dean Natchez Campus

Travis Thornton joined Copiah-Lincoln Community College as Associate Dean in charge of the Natchez campus in July, 1990. Prior to coming to Copiah-Lincoln, he served as Dean of Student Affairs at Mississippi Delta Community College in Moorhead for 19 years. Dean Thornton holds a Masters Degree in Education from Mississippi College in Clinton and a Bachelors Degree in Education from Delta State University in Cleveland. He is an active member in various civic and political organizations and has served as president of the Mississippi School Counselors Association, Mississippi Junior College Counselors Association, Mississippi Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admission Officers, Kiwanis Club of Leland, Rotary Club of Moorhead, and Mississippi Delta Junior College Alumni Association. When Dean Thornton was asked about his goals for Co-Lin/Natchez, he responded by saying, "I'd like to see the college continue to grow within the community providing post-secondary education and cultural opportunities on an expanded basis." He added, "Co-Lin/Natchez is something the community can be proud of — and with justification. But whatever changes are necessary, whatever the needs are, we'll always be receptive. Co-Lin is here to serve the Natchez community."

The Thornton family includes Travis and Jenny Thornton and their son, Rob.



Dean Thornton and Sandra Davidson put the finishing touches on the car used to drive Mr. and Miss Co-Lin/Natchez in the Natchez Christmas parade.

Jarrett E. Nicholson

A finance and commercial banking major, Nicholson stays on the Dean's List. He is a member of Phi Theta Kappa and is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges for 1990-91. Nicholson was captain of the Ushers Guild for the 1989-90 school year.

Natchez Hall of Fame 1978-1991

To be chosen to the Hall of Fame is the highest honor that can be given a Copiah-Lincoln Community College student. Each was nominated in open nominations and approved by a screening committee of fellow students, recommended by a faculty committee on the basis of character, leadership, and contribution to Copiah-Lincoln Community College. The three Natchez Campus selections are added to the 27 chosen since the initiation of Hall of Fame in 1978.

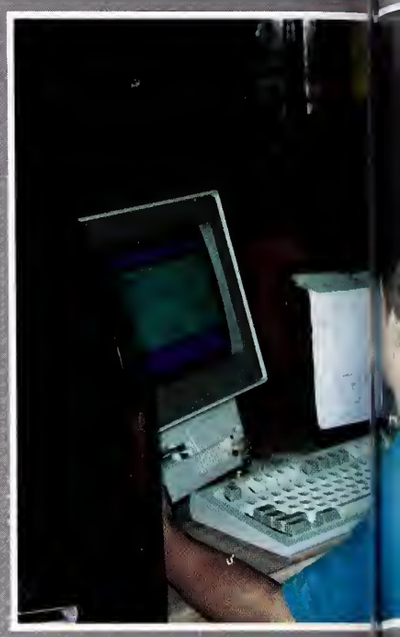
STUDY! STUDY! STUDY!

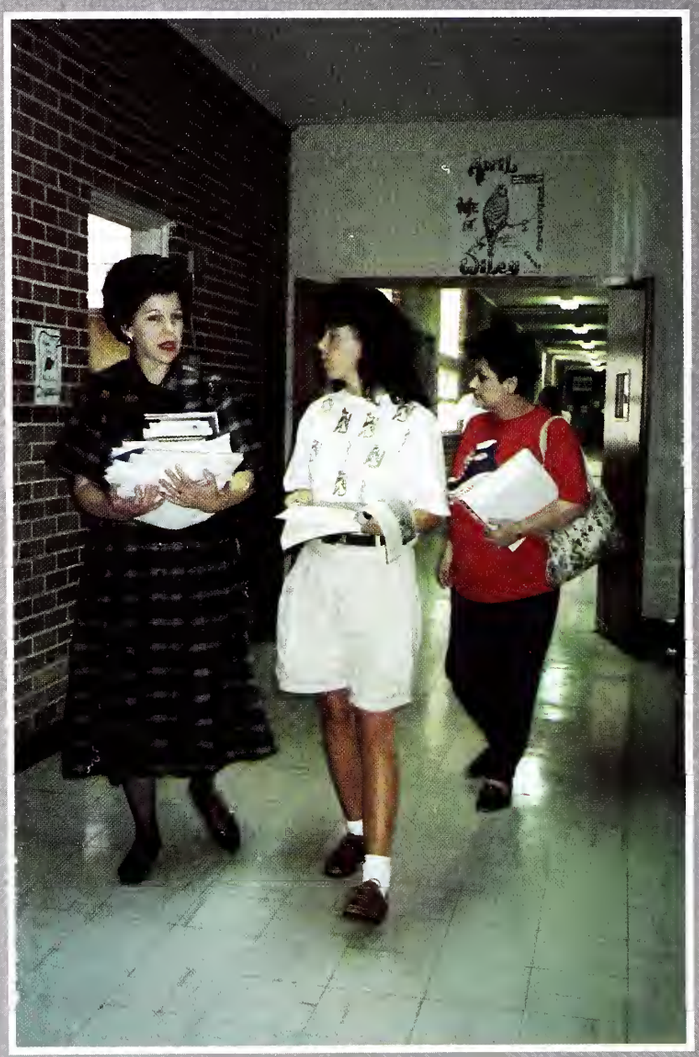
That's the Name of the Game

Charles de Secondat hit the nail on the head when he proclaimed that "you have to study a great deal to know a little."

For it seems that all our time outside the classroom is spent with our noses in a book studying. We study in the hallways, in the empty classrooms, in the learning center, in the Hob Nob, and yes, even on the sidewalk of our campus. We seem to always be studying for the next quiz or the next test.

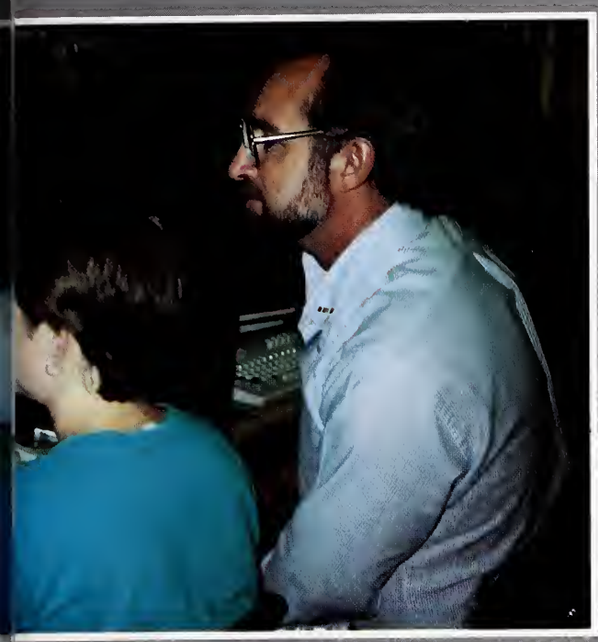
There never seems to be enough time to study and digest all the information we are given and so we try to budget our time wisely and steal the moments we can to study what we can.





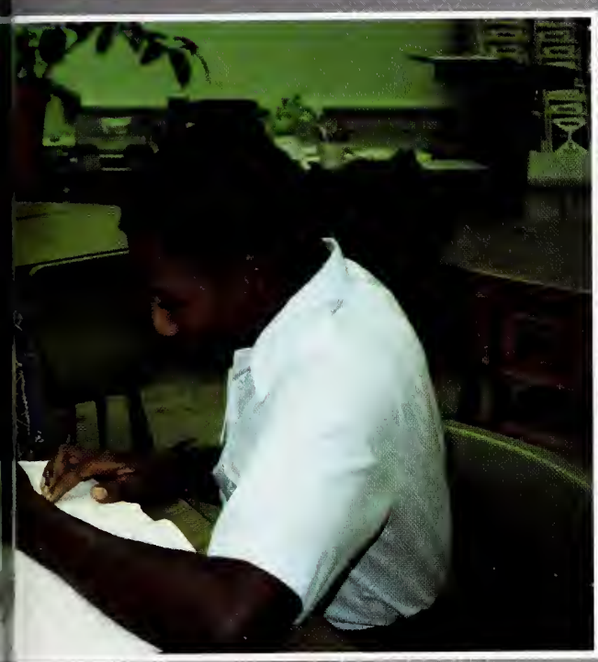
Carolyn Smith takes time out on her way to class to give advice to Elsie Rodriquez while Pat Cater appears to be taking note.

Becky Ferguson finds that the best place to get "food for thought" is the Hob Nob.



Rose Smith and Jimmy Searcy find that sometimes it takes two to make a computer go right.

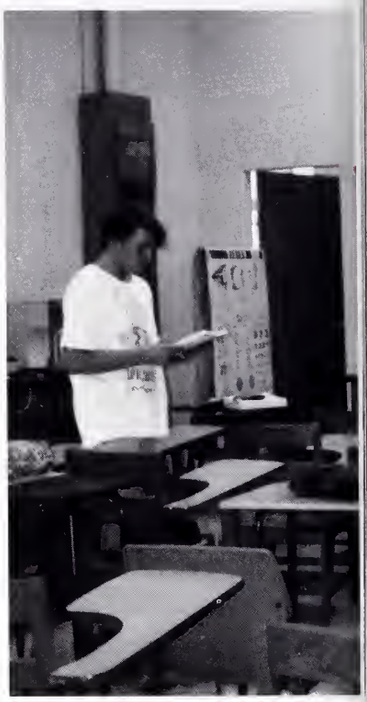
Cynthia Davis pleas for quiet as she tries to concentrate amid the crowded Physical Education class. Any time is a good time for study although Lynn Roberts uses her P.E. time for relaxation.



Donald Carter tutors Reece Junkin in the fine art of math.

Julia Good and Janice Beach find time to relax in the hall while Sandra Savage finds time to put the finishing touch on her homework.

Who's Who Among American Junior College Students



The 1990-91 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges will include the names of eighteen students selected from the Natchez campus. All students named for this honor were nominated by faculty members from both the Washington and Beltline sites. They join a special group of students selected from various colleges throughout the United States, as well as from colleges located in several foreign countries.

Our Who's Who Students demonstrate not only academic excellence but leadership skills and abilities. They often give sound advice and guidance to their peers. They provide valuable services to both the institution of Co-Lin and the surrounding Natchez community.

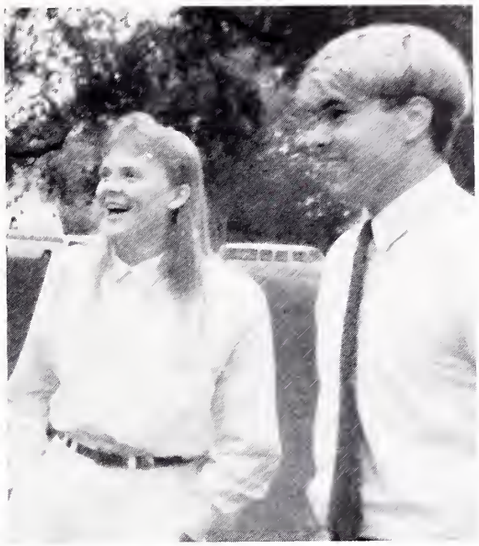
Phillip Watts, a member of Who's Who, Circle K, and PTK, reviews his Physics class lecture notes to make sure he understands the concepts.

Morea Bell, a member of Who's Who, N-Sights, PTK, Circle K, S.H.A.R.E., and Natchez Writers Club, and her classmates try to practice stress management as they take one of Mrs. Brown's Sociology exams.

LaJuan Beach, a Who's Who, PTK, and Chess Club member, and Mark McGraw found the Southern Governor's Conference enlightening.



Cindy Lipscomb, a Who's Who member, along with her fellow classmates discover that Physical Science can be a challenging course, but that doesn't stop their determination to try to "get on top of things."

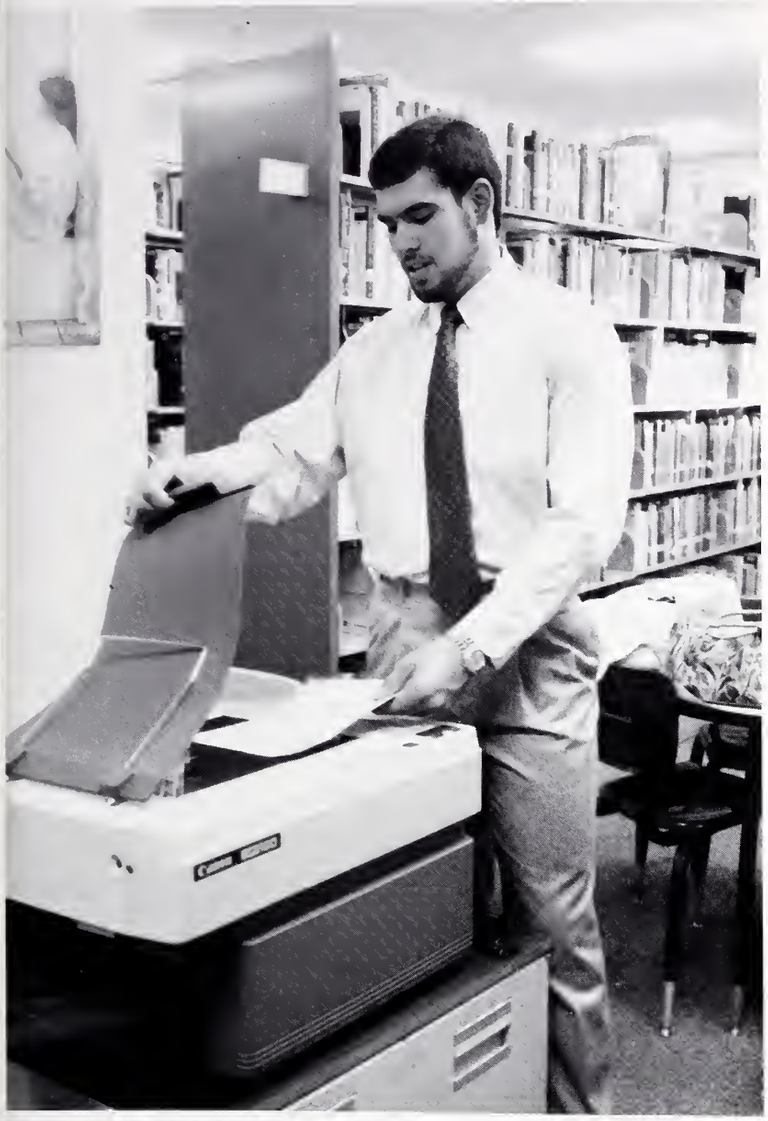
Graciously, Julie Pennington pushes her books aside and smiles for the camera.

Joan McLemore has the never ending job of keeping the library resource material properly cataloged and shelved.

Gerilyn Cavin combines all available resources - calculator, notes, and books - to complete her physics take-home quiz.

Sandra Davidson uses the library to meet with Eloise Baylor, Hope Parker, and Morea Bell, members of S.H.A.R.E.

Joan McLemore Takes Over Reins As New Librarian



Co-Lin's new librarian, Joan McLemore, has brightened our library with new life and energy. Mrs. McLemore is an avid storyteller and has a vivacious, contagious attitude toward reading. She came to Co-Lin in July and takes her job seriously believing that a school is only as good as its library. She says that "the library is the heart of a school!"

The library has become a multipurpose meeting place, and its uses are many. Students come to do research, to socialize, to find a quiet study place, and even to court. But McLemore says its primary purpose is for research. The library is "a place you enter seeking information, and leave having gained knowledge."

Irby Campbell finds the Xerox machine a valuable asset, especially when it comes to copying lecture notes he missed in class.

Jo Ann Green uses material found in the library to do her research paper.

DOUBLE, DOUBLE, TOIL And TROUBLE

Halloween day is a time when children usually dress up in various costumes to scare adults and play the game of "trick or treat." Those students at Co-Lin who are still "children-at-heart" seize the opportunity to dress up as clowns, witches, and goblins but try as they might no one jumped when they screamed "BOO". They were, however, treated with smiles and laughter.

Bones, the skeleton man, begins to shake and rattle as Halloween approaches.

Donna Carter decided to clown around on Halloween.

Cissy Wisner stirs up a witch's brew for unsuspecting Roy Shelby.

Jo Ann Green begs goblin, Gerilyn Cavin, not to gobble up the computer.

Giving The "Gift of Life"

Co-Lin students took time away from their busy schedules to make a small, yet significant contribution to the welfare of mankind. In its annual blood drive, Circle K was responsible for the donation of forty-two units of blood to the Mississippi Blood Services. Leigh Ann Delaney, President of Circle K, believes that events of this type encourage students to give back to the community. John Bullen, advisor of Circle K, encouraged students to "give so that others may live."

Tuttie Cater seems very relaxed in a tense situation.

Circle K members were available throughout the day, comforting novice donors and offering their assistance to the Mississippi Blood Services.

Members of Mississippi Blood Services prepare to collect blood donations from students.

"The Galloping Gourmet"

"Putting the icing on the cake"

Co-Lin's professional food services instructor, Kathy Madden, is the "icing on the cake" at the Vo-Tech Center. Whether teaching cake decorating classes or catering special events at Co-Lin, Kathy is always available with her delicacies. "Cooking with Kathy" has been popular with Co-Lin students, faculty, and staff for the past seven years and her program is expected to continue to grow.

Return to Mayberry RFD

"Nip it in the bud"

This is the policy of Co-Lin's security officer, John Inmon. Inmon is an employee of All State Security and is trained to meet trouble head-on. But because the Co-Lin campus is like a typical "Mayberry", he probably won't be needing his gun. Students here are dedicated to making his job an easy one. Actually the only action he seems to get on campus is occasionally writing a ticket for a parking violation or helping students retrieve keys they've inadvertently locked in their cars.

Student Government Association

SGA serves not only the legislative body for the student population but it also acts as a liaison between students and faculty. SGA is involved in many campus and community events. The association along with other clubs and organizations, sponsored the Co-Lin's Natchez balloon in Natchez balloon race and was host of the annual Christmas party for students, faculty, and staff. Presently, the group is making plans to participate in the Mardi Gras parade and is making plans to host a luncheon for the graduating class of 1990-91.

Jackie Boles and Susan Reeves fill their plates at the Christmas luncheon hosted by SGA.

"One for you . . . one for me," says Margaret Marsh as she serves drinks at the SGA Christmas luncheon.

Full House

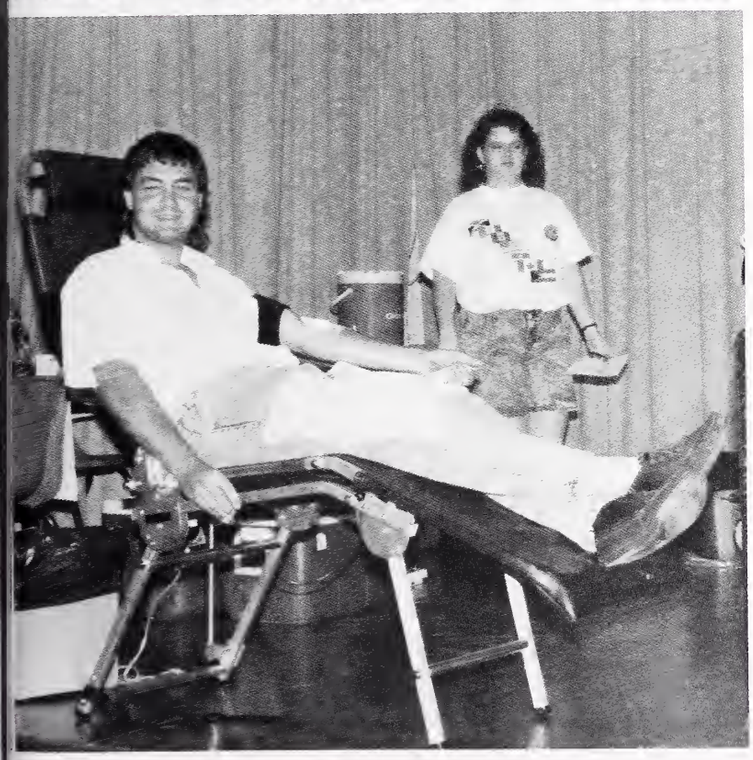
Circle K

Circle K is the largest and perhaps the most active organization on campus. "Its 22 members total about five percent of the entire student body," according to advisor, John Bullen.

Circle K has hosted several events and fundraisers to help the needy. The group sponsored the annual blood drive conducted on campus in October, and in December, held a raffle to help a Co-Lin student with her medical expenses. They also took names off the Angel Tree at a local store to buy Christmas gifts for needy children.

Last year the group was the largest volunteer group to assist with the Special Olympics. This year, again, they will participate in the annual walk-a-thon fundraiser for Special Olympics and will sell carnations for St. Valentine's Day. Moreover, Leigh Ann Delaney, President of Circle K, said that the group "even had a hand in the Co-Lin Mardi Gras float, 'Co-Lin Salutes the Jazz Era'."

"Up, up and away in my beautiful balloon" seems to be the song on the mind of students as they prepare Co-Lin/Natchez balloon, the Mississippi, for entrance in the fifth annual Great Mississippi Balloon Race.



Eddie Hester appears perfectly relaxed as he prepares to donate blood during the annual campus blood drive sponsored by Circle K.

Meet The Press

N-Sights

During each semester, the journalism department publishes and distributes three issues of the Co-Lin newspaper, "N-Sights," which is free to all students, faculty, administration, and interested community citizens. Scholarships are awarded for editor, managing editor, and business manager positions filled by advisor/dean selection. Experience is gained in newspaper writing, advertising, photography, layout, design, and paste-up.

N-Sights' members stay busy participating in numerous activities. Co-hosting with Co-Lin's Wesson campus, the Mississippi Community College Press Association's (MJCCPA) annual fall meeting was held in Natchez. The organization also co-sponsored the Co-Lin Natchez balloon in the Natchez Balloon Race held in October. Plans for the spring include inviting professional writers to participate in classroom discussions and attending the MJCCPA's annual spring meeting in Biloxi. At this conference, N-Sight staff members plan to compete with staff members from community colleges throughout the state. "We are looking forward to MJCCPA's spring conference and another award winning year," says Leigh Ann Delaney, editor. N-Sights regularly wins state awards from MJCCPA including two first place awards in 1989 and four writing awards in 1990, the most won by any community college.

Edith Bunch, Leigh Ann Delaney, and Johnny Ratliff listen intently as advisor, Carolyn Smith gives tips on how to write a good story for N-Sights.

Morea Bell, Ruth Latham, Michelle White, and Paige Kempinska are all wondering what their next assignment will be.

Who's The Boss?

Distributive Education Clubs of America

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) is made of up students interested in business and marketing and provides opportunities for developing skills in these areas. The group has participated in several charitable activities and fundraisers this year. In November, for example, they held a raffle and filled a food basket for a needy family at Thanksgiving.

Co-Lin is especially proud of Michelle Walker, who serves as Co-President with Candice Finch. After serving as state secretary for DECA in 1989-90, she was elected chairman of the board for the state of Mississippi. In November, Michelle represented the Mississippi chapter of DECA at the national DECA meeting in Orlando, Florida. In November, 1989, she attended a meeting in New York City.

In April, 1990 she traveled to Orlando and in May, 1990 to San Jose, California. According to Michelle, "At all of the meetings we learn so much from the experts."

Michelle Walker (seated) with support of her advisors, Becky Holloway and Joyce Calcote appears ready and eager to attend the national meeting of DECA in Orlando, Florida.

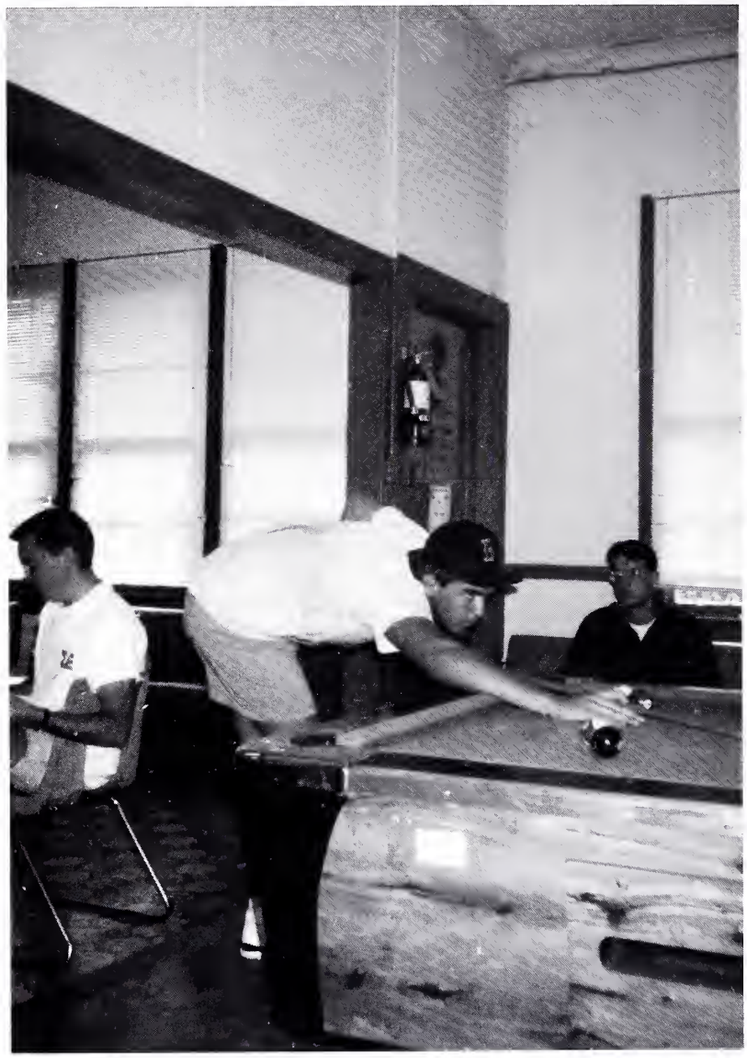
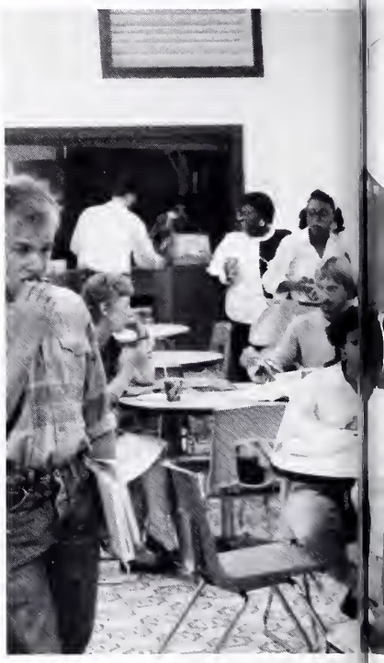
Close Encounters of The "Nicest" Kind . . .

Lifelong friendships are often made on college campuses. With its warm, relaxed atmosphere, Co-Lin's Hob Nob is the perfect place for making new friendships and for cultivating old ones. Students congregate here to study together, to have refreshments, or simply to relax and socialize.



Scott Crain sharpens his pool shooting skills while Ty Ferrell and Brian Gilbert relax in the background.



Stephen Green and Michelle White take a quick break from class to have a snack and review the daily news.

Lynn Roberts and Kenneth Bergeron quietly look on as Tabitha Wroten prepares to "clear the table."

Co-Lin students gather at the Hob Nob for refreshments, to socialize with classmates, and to simply relax.

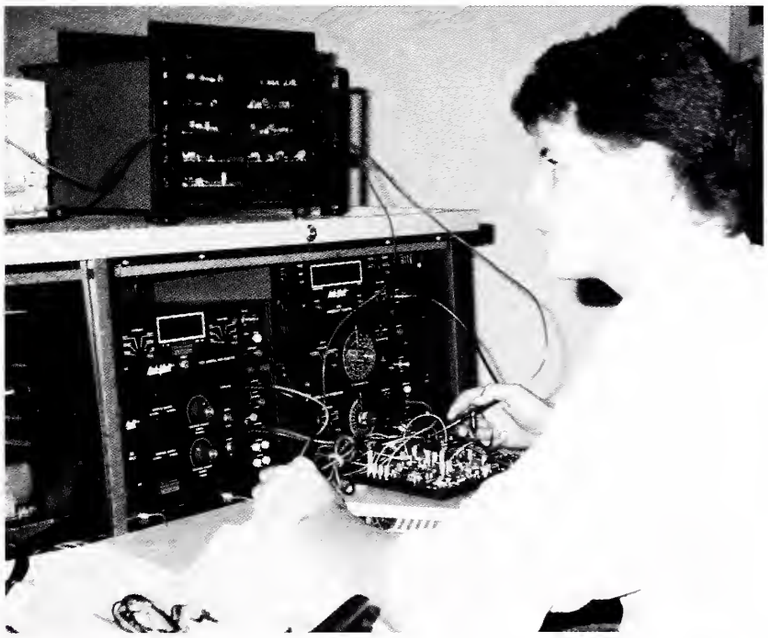
Albert Evans asks David Davidson for assistance.

Vo-Tech—Keeping in Step with The Changing Times

Co-Lin/Natchez Vocational-Technical Center is indeed keeping in step with the changing times. One of the primary objectives of Co-Lin is to provide vocational and technical programs that prepare students for immediate employment. The vocational training program at the Natchez Campus includes commercial truck driving, practical nursing, professional food service and management, communication systems repair and maintenance, and commercial construction. The technical programs include child development technology, sales and management technology, business technology, landscape technology, and hotel-motel management technology.

The following quotes taken from a leaflet distributed by the Center adequately summarizes what Vo-Tech is all about and points out the advantages of becoming part of its program. "Vocational-Technical training prepares students for the whole gamut of jobs from entry-level to the most advanced. It prepares people for 26 of the 37 occupations that the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics predicts will create the largest number of new jobs by 1995. Many studies prove that vocational education increases students' chances for job placement and success. The primary reason most parents want an education for their children is 'job opportunities/better jobs'. Vocational programs can help prepare students for work or college. It is insurance for success!"

Ann Gossett and Jim Todd have just the right touch when it comes to growing plants.



Louella Marvel gives Shirley Scott, Betty Smith, Linda Jackson, Janet Reed, Lillian Ransom, and Emma McDaniel pointers on how to provide good child care services.

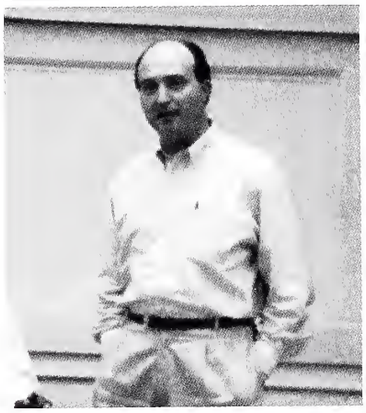
Bubba Davis appears to be having so much fun in class he didn't want to stop and smile for the camera.

It's A Family Affair

"There is an understood closeness among students at Co-Lin and the atmosphere is always friendly and warm—the resulting feeling I'll always remember." This statement by Paige Kempinska reflects the aura that surrounds the campus of Co-Lin/Natchez. We at the Natchez campus exist as a family unit. We care about each other. We do not hesitate in assisting each other in times of distress. We are never too busy or too tired to point each other in the right direction or to simply listen when one of us feels the need to talk. We are quick to smile, to give each other a handshake or a pat on the back, or to simply ask, "Can I help?" "Every teacher I've had," according to Paige, "has been very understanding and helpful with problems. They've helped me find humor in situations I deemed helpless. More importantly, they made me feel as if they were really concerned." We at Co-Lin share the joy and the pain for we know that as a family we are building our tomorrow together.

Cissy Wisner appears to be pointing Paul Smith in the right direction as Jim Wiggins looks on.

Mayor David Armstrong moonlights at Co-Lin as a part-time instructor teaching Oral Communication.



Are we serious yet? John Bullen and Leigh Ann Delaney seem to be but we're not sure about Kathy Toney.

Estella Robinson took time out of her busy schedule to smile for the camera.

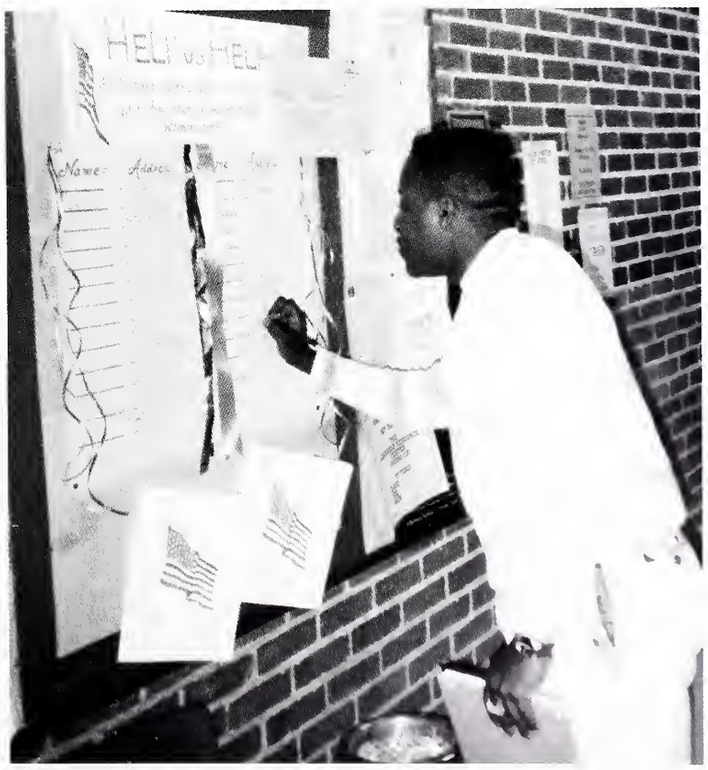
Top Gun

Co-Lin Natchez Salutes Its American Service Men and Women

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times . . . we had everything before us, we had nothing before us." With the new year, 1991, came continued world unrest; Operation Desert Shield became Operation Desert Storm. Co-Lin respectfully salutes the following students who have been placed on active military status: Kevin Dykes, Debra Morris, Michael Mascagni, Mark McGraw, John T. Smith, John Rob Tillman, Trey McConnell, Jay Toney, Jeff Mullen, and Herman Scott (Co-Lin employee).

Tying a yellow ribbon around an oak tree has come to symbolize the wishes we all have that our family and friends will return to us safely from the war.

Sonya Braswell, Roy Shelby, and Bettye Mullen express concern as they anxiously listen to news about war in the Gulf.



Kenneth Taylor adds yet another name to the list of our American Service Men and Women from Co-Lin who have been activated for possible military duty in the Gulf.

The Learning Resource Center provides invaluable services to students.

The Learning Resource Center (LRC) officially opened its doors with the beginning of the 1990 Fall Semester. Judy Daniels Wiggins serves as director of the new Center. Assisting her are Mary Louise West, a senior aide, and Wanda Williams, a work study student. Mrs. West says, "It is a rewarding experience to be a link in the Learning Resource Center."

The LRC provides students with tutors. Donald Carter, one of the math tutors says that it is a good idea to come to the Center early in the semester at the first sign of a problem. "Don't wait until you are too late for us to help you," he advises. The LRC has six IBM PC's and one Apple Computer which are used almost constantly. English students have made good use of them for research papers and essays, the N-Sight staff has written newspaper articles using the computer, and math students spend time on trigonometry or algebra problems generated by these computers. Students also come to the Center to make up missed tests. According to Mrs. Wiggins, 767 students visited the LRC during the Fall Semester. "During the Spring Semester, I hope to see even more students as the Center expands to meet the needs of all students in both vocational and academic areas," she adds.

Get The Picture

We, the yearbook staff, hope that the Co-Lin/Natchez student body did get the picture. We spent many long hours trying to, not only fill the pages or meet deadlines, but to also give you a first-rate yearbook. As editor, I have enjoyed working on the yearbook and would like to thank all who played a part in its production. I would especially like to thank Mrs. Gerri Brown, our advisor and friend, who writes most of our copy and designs most of our layouts. Mrs. Brown has spent more than her share of time helping us to make this yearbook complete. I would also like to say, "Thank you," to the students, faculty, and administrators for their patience and cooperation because without them, Co-Lin would not be able to get the picture.

Gerilyn Cavin

Sandy Scruggs looks at pictures taken by Ali Unsri, while Gerilyn Cavin stops Gerri Brown dead in her tracks when she tells her how many more pages they have left to design.

Jasin Wesberry, Gerilyn Cavin and Sandy Scruggs are all searching for just the right picture, while Rachel Cater and Eloise Baylor get ready to type the copy.

Making the Trillium a successful yearbook takes long hours and lots of dedication. Just ask Gerri Brown, Sandy Scruggs, Linda Tuesno, and Rachel Cater.

Eloise Baylor prepares to type yet another copy sheet for the Trillium.

Go Ahead, Make My Day

Members of the college publications class "made a day of it" when they attended the Mississippi Community College Press Association Conference held at the Ramada Hilltop Inn. Pictured are Patrick Butler, Eloise Baylor, Michelle White, Rachel Cater, and Mark McGraw. The students enjoyed workshops, meeting local celebrities, and refreshments, while the Trillium was recognized with awards in layout and design and theme development for 1989-90. There's No Place Like Home

Students of the publications department enjoyed an afternoon away from campus in the graceful gardens of Stanton Hall in Natchez. Pictured are Helen Hunter, Patrick Butler, Mark McGraw, Morea Bell, Michelle White, Rachel Cater, Eloise Baylor, and Paige Kempinska. The setting beneath the massive oaks portrays our gracious, beautiful city well and captures the atmosphere of days gone by. This is our home. This is Natchez.

It's never too late to "cram," and the halls of Co-Lin seem to be the perfect place to gather information before a test. Tabitha Wroten finds time to instruct Elise Rodriquez in the elementary fundamentals of sociology, while Jay Massey adds his valuable input.

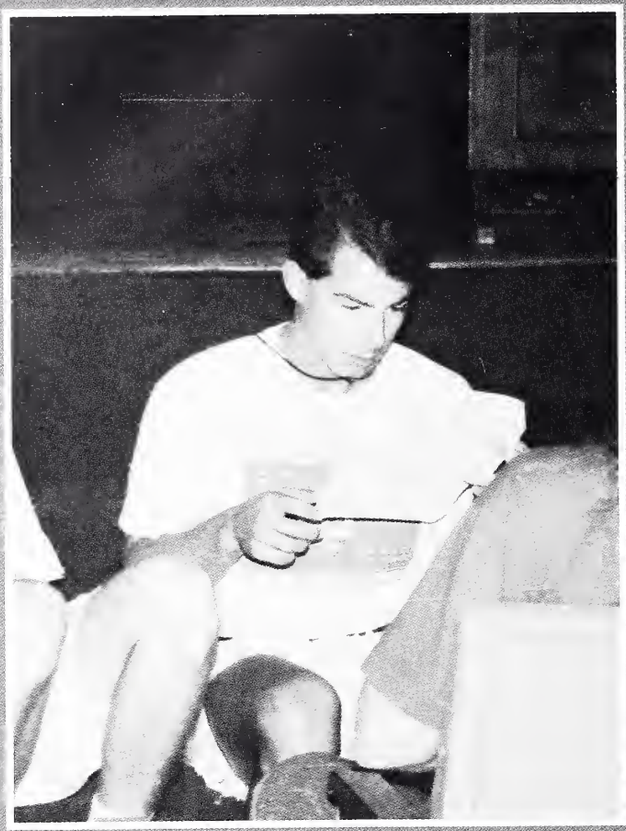
Look Who's Talking

"Hello, Hello, this is Amy Buckles . . ." Who's Amy calling? Could it be the Learning Resource Center, or perhaps her private tutor? Maybe by miracle of miracles she's gotten Dr. Paul's private home phone number. Or could it be that she's phoned directory assistance to get Mrs. Brown's home phone number? The possibilities are endless, but her smile is our best clue. Surely, Amy's gotten her favorite beau on the line.

Machine Shop student Harvey Watkins of Hazlehurst files a center gage as part of his course training. This program prepares students to become machinists or advanced apprentices.

Corey Verrett of Morgan City, La., reads over some important PTK initiation material before the fall ceremony.



Sophomore David Montgomery of Bogue Chitto sings a number as part of the Christian rock group "High Calling." Montgomery is also a member of the Sojourners and the concert choir.

Freshman Bryan Jackson of Natchez studies his next pool shot. During the year, some students begin to take pool as seriously as they do their studies.

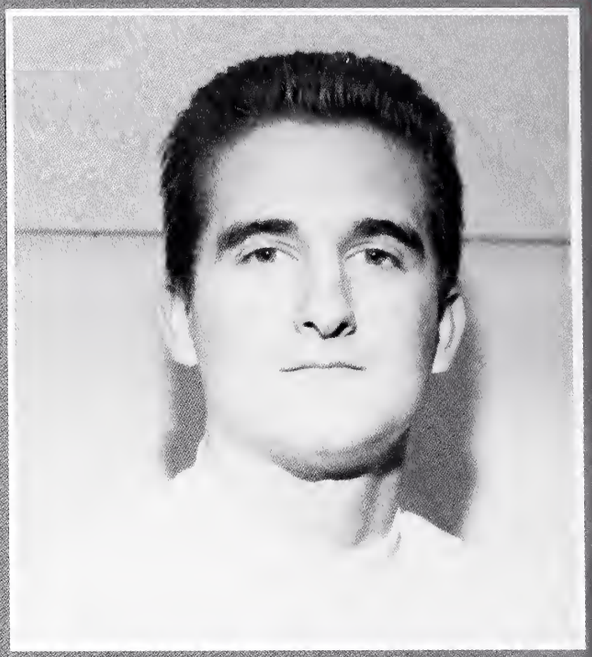
Top ten beauties do their quarter turns for the judges during the Trillium Beauty Pageant held in November. The yearbook staff sponsors the pageant each fall.

The final pages of the yearbook have been drawn, and the staff hopes its work shows the events of the year in a unique way. The staff has tried to capture the pictures of 1990-91 so that they will live in the memories of the students for years to come.

Trillium staff members thank Don Jackson, Jimmy Anderson, Bret Moore, Darlene Kintsley, and their sponsor Harriet Vickers, for the photography. Special thanks to Miss Vickers for lending a helping hand with the copy too. The students, faculty, staff, and administration are also commended because without them there would be no "pictures worth a thousand words."

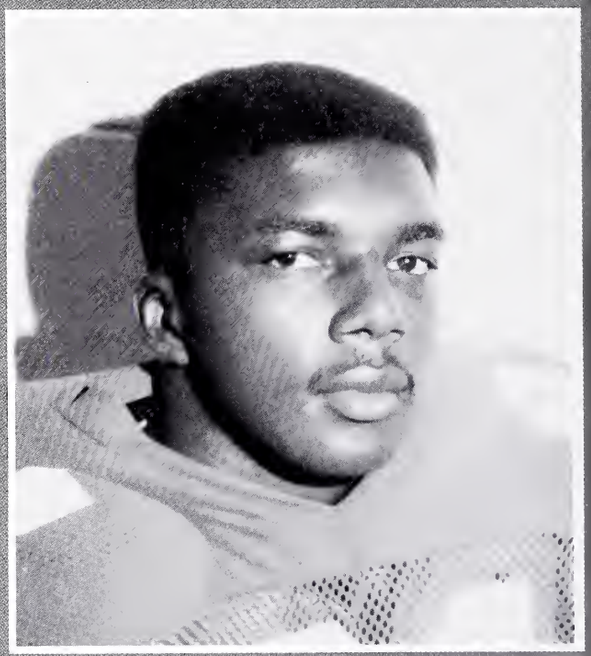
Pictures Of Fame

Six Colinians grab Hall of Fame honors.



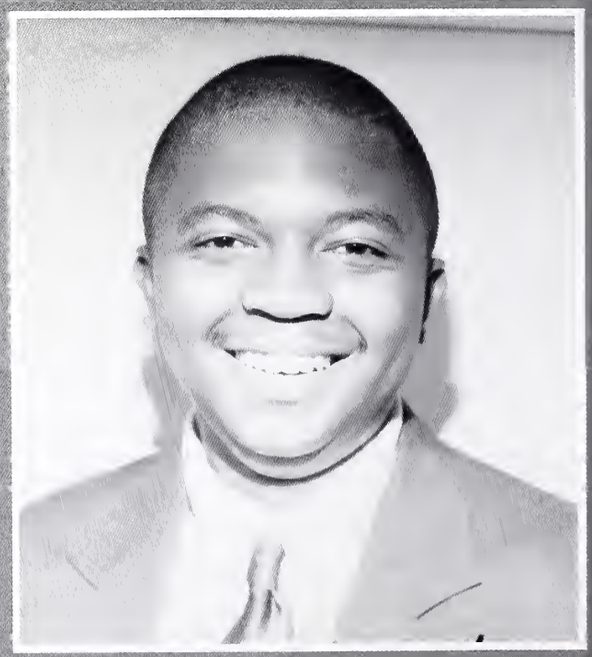
Ivan Burghard

Ivan Burghard of Crystal Springs joined the five other prestigious Hall of Fame members with a 3.46 grade point average and a long list of involvement in campus activities. The political science/law major served Phi Theta Kappa honorary society as projects director and served Phi Beta Lambda as that organization's reporter. Burghard was listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges and was on the college's honor roll. He also was a member of the Trailblazers recruiting and public relations group, traveling into district high schools and encouraging seniors to attend Co-Lin. He finished out his sophomore year among the select members of the college's Scholar's Bowl Team.



Chaucer Funchess

Hall of Famer Chaucer Funchess of Magee was a great athlete on the football field and was a great personality anywhere he went on campus. A 6'2" - 205 defensive end for the Wolfpack, Funchess was chose first team all-state, an all-star, and a member of the all-region team. He was also named the team's most valuable player, team co-captain, and he received the leadership award. Funchess maintained a 2.80 grade point average while working toward a liberal arts degree at the college. Known as one of the friendliest students on campus, he was selected by the student body as a class favorite, and he was a member of the Afro-American Plus Club.



Charles Jackson

"Involved" was the only word to be used when describing Hall of Fame member Charles Jackson of Roxie. He served as a leader for many organizations including the Student Government Association and Phi Theta Kappa. Jackson was president of these groups, and he was also vice president of Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity. Besides being a member of the band, choir, President's Council, and Wesley Foundation, Jackson represented the Baptist Student Union as devotional chairman. He was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges and was selected Mr. Co-Lin by the student body. A 3.15 grade point average student, Jackson's major at the college was business administration.

Scott Marler

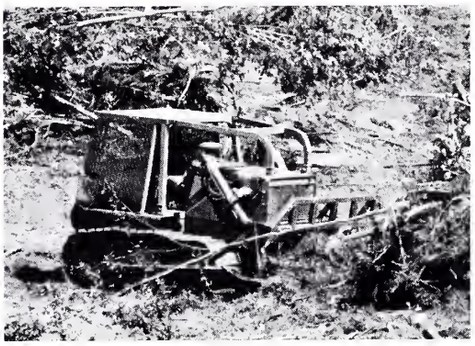
Scott Marler of Crystal Springs, another Hall of Fame member, maintained a 3.81 grade point average as a biology major. A dean's list scholar, Marler was elected regional secretary of Phi Theta Kappa scholastic fraternity for the 1990-91 school year. Other organizations that Marler took an active part in were the college band, choir and Alpha Omega science club. He served as a science department laboratory assistant, as a member of the Scholar's Bowl Team and the President's Council, and as an instrumentalist for the Sojourners musical performing group. President of the Baptist Student Union, he also served during the summer of 1990 as a missionary.

Kathy Odom

An award-winning script writer for Phi Theta Kappa, Hall of Famer Kathy Odom of Jayess brought recognition to the group at regional convention with her piece "Civilization at Risk: Challenge of the '90's." Listed as a president's scholar with a 4.0 grade point average, Odom was named the Higher Education Appreciation Day, Working For Academic Excellence (H.E.A.D.W.A.E.) outstanding student of the year. She was honored by the state legislature in February for this achievement. She also served as editor of Microcosm, the college's award-winning literary magazine. A member of the President's Council, the music education major was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

Chan Willis

A 2.86 grade point average student, Hall of Fame member Chan Willis of Magee compiled an extensive list of campus activities and honors. In the fall, she was named homecoming queen by the student body, which, at a later election, named her Miss Co-Lin for 1990-91. The pre-nursing major held several offices including Afro-American Plus Club vice president, Student Government Association secretary, and freshman class officer. She also was a member of the Trailblazers recruiting and public relations organization, the choir and the band as a color guard captain. Selected a freshman homecoming maid, Willis was chosen to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.



A bulldozer clears land between the railroad tracks and Old Highway 51 as progress on the access road is made. The appearance of bulldozers on campus made everyone realize the new road was no longer a figment of their imagination.

A construction worker tries to find his way around concrete, dirt, and cement brought in for the building of handicapped elevators. The elevators allow access to second floor classrooms for handicapped students.

Old restroom facilities are stacked outside Smith Hall while new ones are installed.

Dirt by the truck loads was brought in for the construction of the access road. Completion date is June 1991.

Constructing A Picture

A new access road, plus elevators for the handicapped become a reality for anxious administrators.

Accessibility for all students to the entire campus is being made simpler with the construction of an access road extending from Highway 51 across the railroad track.

Plans for the road were begun in 1985, and amid much anticipation, the groundbreaking ceremonies were held on Oct. 4. Completion date on the project is June of this year.

Also, handicapped students have gained accessibility to the second floors of classroom buildings with the installation of elevators to Smith Hall and the Fortenberry Building.

With the addition of new ramps around the campus, the handicapped are also able to go places on campus they haven't gone before.

College President Dr. Billy Thames said, ''The whole campus should be handicap accessible where necessary for students to get an education.''

Concerning renovation projects, plans are underway for improvements to Rea Auditorium in the Administration Building.

Dr. Thames said, ''We want to make this a nice, comfortable facility for use not only by the college, but for use by the surrounding communities as well.''

He added, ''It's the largest auditorium in Copiah and Lincoln counties, maybe in the whole Co-Lin district.''

Phase I renovation includes roofing and painting of the entire building, waterproofing of walls, air conditioning, and a water drainage system.

Phase II renovation will include new lighting, carpeting, painting of the inside, and a new ceiling if funds are available.

Funding for Phase I was appropriated in the 1989 session of the legislature. Other planned renovation projects include work on the old auto mechanics shop and the Fortenberry Building.

Dig In - Town, county, district, and state officials shovel the soil during groundbreaking ceremonies for the access road. The groundbreaking was held on Oct. 4 on the old band practice field.

New sidewalks are poured for handicap accessibility to vocational-technical classrooms.

A crane can be seen against clear skies in late fall. Those working on the access road didn't see blue skies every day, but construction continued even during cold, rainy weather.

Pretty As A Picture

Sponsored by the yearbook staff, the Trillium Beauty Pageant produces the most beautiful co-eds on campus each year.

Lana Russell, most beautiful for 1990-91, said she was shocked and very excited when the master of ceremonies announced her name as the winner of the Trillium Beauty Pageant.

Russell said, "It was really extra-special because this was the 75th pageant that I had entered."

A winner of beauty pageants throughout Southwest Mississippi, Russell also attends a modeling school in Metairie, La.

"I think this really helped me with this pageant because at school one of the things they teach us is how to prepare for pageants," she said.

Russell, a sophomore cosmetology major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Russell of Brookhaven. She was chosen a Co-Lin beauty her freshman year and she has served as vice-president of the Vocational-Industrial Clubs of American (VICA) organization.

Beauties chosen during the pageant were Jennifer Patrick of Mendenhall, Lesia Smith of Loyd Star, Paula Bryant of New Hebron, and Laurice Pierce of Hazlehurst.

Patrick, a freshman business major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jaris Patrick of Mendenhall.

She is in her first year as a member of the Co-Lin cheerleading squad.

Smith is a freshman pre-law major and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie G. Smith of Loyd Star.

She is a graduate of Loyd Star High School where she was an active member of the Beta Club.

Bryant, is the daughter of Paul Bryant of New Hebron and Lucy Jones of Magee. She is a freshman pursuing a degree in criminal justice.

Pierce is a sophomore paralegal major and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Pierce of Hazlehurst.

She has been a member of the Colettes dance team and was a member of the 1990 homecoming court.

A class favorite, she was chosen a top-ten beauty in last year's pageant and was also a member of the Sojourner's musical performing group.

Burlian Walker, executive director of the foundation and alumni affairs, served as master of ceremonies at the pageant. Pageant director was Harriet Vickers.

Chad Simmons of Brookhaven entertained the audience with several country music selections. Also performing were students David Montgomery of Bogue Chitto and Nicole Walters of Brookhaven.

Lana Russell of Brookhaven was chosen most beautiful during the Trillium Beauty Pageant held Nov. 20.

Pageant Escorts Mike Smith of Ocala, Fla., left, and Scott Mullenix of Jacksonville, Fla., give their arm to contestant Karla Adams of Brookhaven.

Pageant Entertainer Chad Simmons of Brookhaven looks disgustingly at his microphone because of a few technical difficulties.

Those making the top ten were, from left, Lesia Smith, Loyd Star; LeTerria Chestang, New Hebron; Lana Russell, Brookhaven; Scarlett Howington, Wesson; Anita Benton, Mendenhall; Karla Adams and Amy Hart, both of Brookhaven; Jennifer Patrick, Mendenhall; Paula Bryant, New Hebron; and Laurice Pierce, Hazlehurst.

Most Beautiful Lana Russell is congratulated by top ten beauty Scarlett Howington of Wesson. Sixteen coeds competed for the pageant title.

Sophomore Class Favorite Lane Smith of Wesson yells through his megaphone at a Wolves football game. Smith, a cheerleader, is involved in several activities and organizations on campus.

Paul Hayles, a sophomore class favorite from Natchez, is also vice president of the sophomore class. One of his duties is to work the polls during campus elections.

My Favorite Picture

Students elect 10 peers out of an enrollment of more than 1,200 to represent them as class favorites.

Sophomore Class Favorite Chaucer Funchess of Magee said that being chosen was definitely an honor for him.

"I was really surprised," he said.

Paul Hayles, another sophomore favorite, said, "It was an honor for me because this is my last year at Co-Lin and because it was my fellow classmates who chose me."

Hayles, who ran for Mr. Co-Lin during a fall election, wasn't selected in the run-off. He said that being chosen a class favorite was the next best thing.

Funchess claimed that being able to get along with all types of people was probably the reason he was selected.

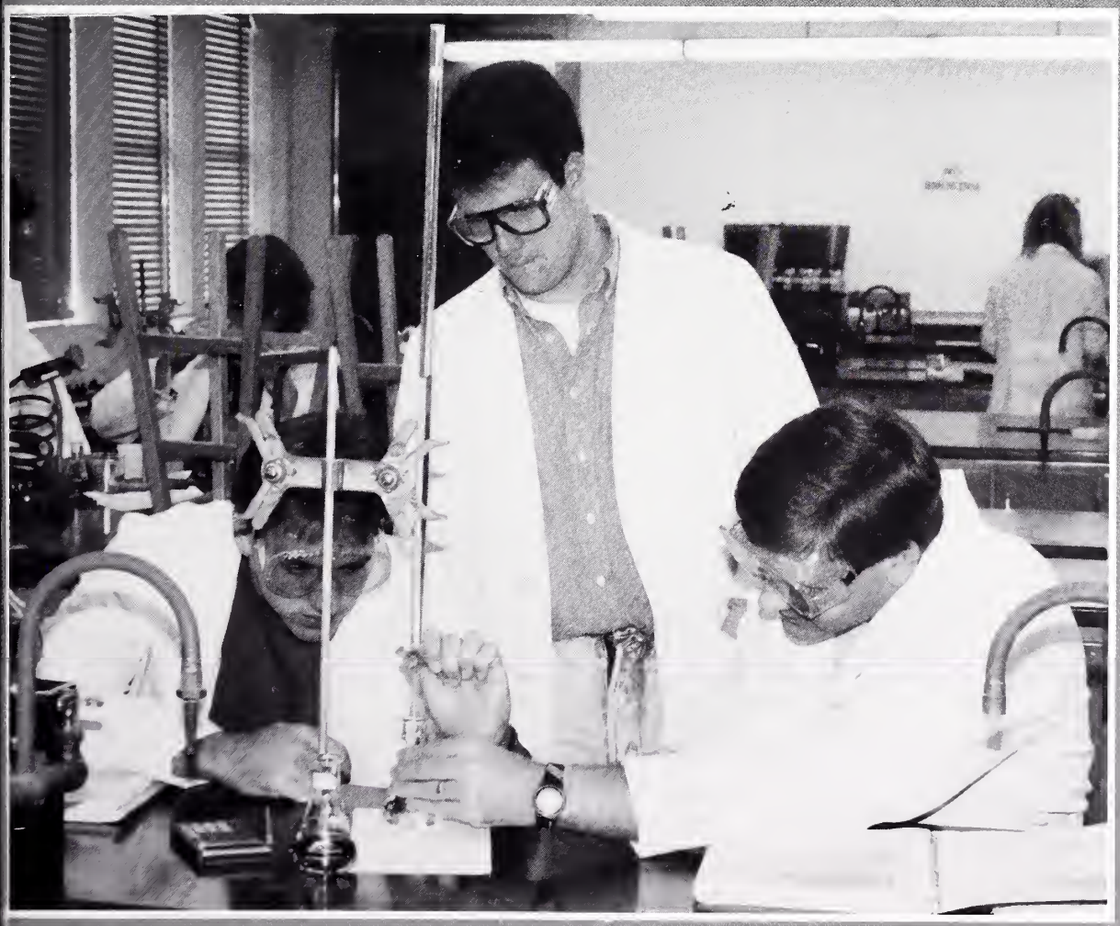
He said, "I've made a lot of friends in the two years I've been here." Both Funchess and Hayles said that they enjoyed going to college at Co-Lin because of the "family atmosphere."

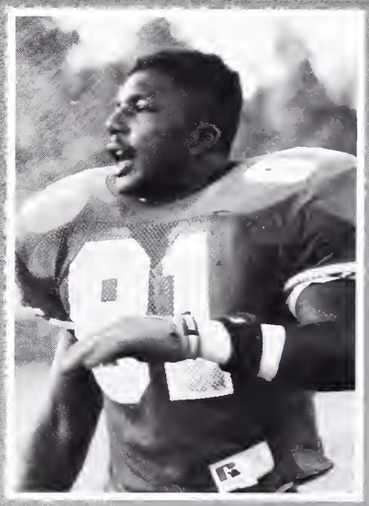
"Everybody knows everybody else and every one is friendly," Funchess said.

Five men and five women are chosen each year as favorites. Each candidate must submit a nomination form to be placed on the voting ballot, and any sophomore or freshman is eligible to run.

Sophomore Favorite Laurice Pierce of Hazlehurst was also chosen a campus beauty.

Felicia Butler of Natchez, right, was chosen a sophomore favorite. She is also a member of Phi Theta Kappa, Trailblazers, and the Colettes.





Class Favorite Chaucer Funchess of Magee runs off the field after making a big play. He makes time in his schedule for class, homework, football, and other activities.

Recognizable Picture

Microcosm editor and advisor are spotlighted by the state legislature in February.

Kathy Odom of Jayess and English teacher Edna Earle Crews were named outstanding student and instructor this year as part of the Higher Education Appreciation Day, Working for Academic Excellence (H.E.A.D.W.A.E.) program.

The two were honored by the state legislature on Feb. 19, in Jackson, and attended a luncheon in their honor at the Ramada Coliseum.

A 4.0 grade point average student, Odom is a member of the Hall of Fame, serves as editor of the Microcosm literary magazine, and is a member of the English Club and the choir.

As a member of Phi Theta Kappa, Odom won regional recognition placing first at convention for her skit script "Civilization at Risk: Challenge of the '90s."

She is a music education major specializing in piano, and she teaches private lessons in her spare time. She also plays the cello.

Odom plans to attend the University of Southern Mississippi and hopes to one day write musical arrangements while continuing her piano teaching.

Crews has been teaching in the Humanities Division since 1966. She serves as advisor of Microcosm, and was campus coordinator for the University of Mississippi Writing-to-Learn for Faculty Development project from 1988 to 1989.

She was also teacher associate for the Continuing Education Program in Composition for Mississippi Teachers from 1987 to 1988 and was editor of Co-Lin's Self Study from 1982 to 1984. In 1986, the Trillium yearbook was dedicated to her for outstanding contributions to education at the institution.

Crews is a representative to the Southeastern Conference of Teachers of English in the Two-Year College and served last year as president of the Mississippi Junior College Creative Writing Association.

She served as editor of The Junior College Writer in 1983 and 1984 and is a member of the Mississippi Council of Teachers of English and the Copiah Writer's Group.

She has made several presentations across the southeast at meetings of the Gulf Coast Conference on the Teaching of Writing, the Southeastern Conference on English in the Two-Year College, the Mississippi Council of Teachers of English, and the Southern Atlantic Modern Language Association.

Outstanding Instructor Edna Earle Crews works on her computer in her classroom. She has been instrumental in getting her students interested in using computers as a writing tool.

Outstanding student Kathy Odom of Jayess, left, who is also editor of the Microcosm literary magazine, looks over the Spring 1990 issue with advisor Edna Earle Crews.

One of Crews' unique teaching techniques is to have her students work in groups instead of individually.

Doing Her Part - Kathy Odom doesn't study all the time. Here, she watches for prospective Microcosm staff members at Club Fair.

Mrs. Crews is the creative writing expert on campus, having given several programs and workshops on the subject at state and regional conventions.

Reading From Her Textbook - Even with three children at home, Kathy Odom finds time to study.

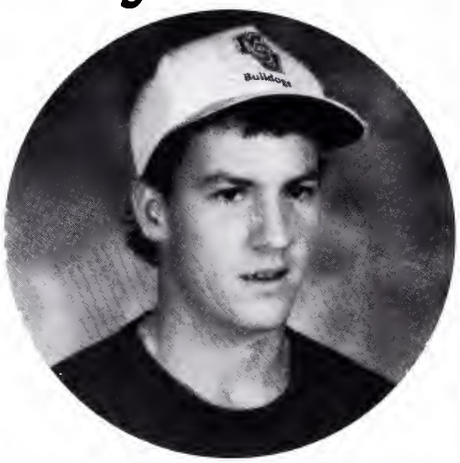
In Memory

Chris Turner



Matt Dodds

Copiah - Lincoln Community College lost two students on Aug. 25, 1990. Sophomore Chris Turner and freshman Matt Dodds, both of Hazlehurst, were killed in an automobile accident on that date, and their bodies were not discovered until Sept. 1.

Dodd's Chevorlet Cavalier left a gravel road west of Interstate 55, hit some trees, and fell into a pit filled with water. Law enforcement officers, family and friends searched for one week for the missing men. Tire tracks, discovered during a search, lead the Copiah County Sheriff's Office to the scene of the incident. The deaths were ruled accidental due to injuries sustained in the wreck.

Dodds was buried on Sept. 3 at the Hazlehurst Cemetery, and Turner's burial was on Sept. 4 at the Shelton Cemetery in Hazlehurst.

The Trillium Yearbook Staff dedicates this page to the memory of these two students who lost their lives at such a very young age.
